Gallant French Fliers The Beautician's Resolve To Help Business, Spend Senatorial Comic Opera Small Crop, Better Price

—By Arthur Brisbane—

COSTE AND BELLONTE, French fliers crossed from Paris to New York, the first westward, non-stop flight ever made. Paris, wild with joy and pride, is celebrating, and displaying pictures of Lindbergh and Coste, side by side.

Unlike new wine in old bottles, the new engine in the old Breguet plane Question Mark with many famous flights to its credit, worked admirably.

Beauty parlor gentlemen now call themselves "beauticians." Which, unpleasantly, suggests "mortician," the new name for your undertaker.

And beauticians will add to their beautifying processes by wasting "in charm." Where, except the beauty parlor should the American woman go, to learn the more subtle forms of feminine charm?" the beautician asks you.

To take a middle aged lady, dye her hair, paint her face, lift it, eradicate the wrinkles, remove superfluous hair and add "feminine charm" seems to be a very complete job.

T. F. Wallace, head of the National Association of Savings Banks, sees the end of the slump, because savings deposits increased $225,000,000. Saving shows strength of mind, but the end of the slump might be still nearer if those that put the $225,000,000 extra into savings banks had put it into circulation, buying merchandise.

What people spend makes prosperity. What they save makes them safe.

Experts of Harvard College, also cheerful about "better times" think a business revival is coming because prices of bonds are rising. That proves that bond buyers have money to invest.

There again, if the man that bought bonds, had bought an automobile, a piano, new furniture or a house in the country instead, he would have done more for improved business than all the rising prices of bonds could do. Spending is what the country needs.

There is comic opera in Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's battle with Senator Nye.

Senator Nye went exploring on the trail of Mrs. McCormick to find what she did with money spent at the primaries. She spent a great deal; she had to.

Now, to his indignation, Senator Nye finds Mrs. McCormick hiring detectives, ten, by actual count, to trail along after him and find what he does.

Questioned, Mrs. McCormick says, "of course I did it. What is Senator Nye going to do about it?"

Senator Nye answered yesterday by subpoenaing the detectives that were shadowing him.

The public feels sure that Mrs. McCormick never did anything wrong, that Senator Nye never did anything wrong, and finds the whole thing amusing.

The head of the Farm Bureau tells farmers the best thing for them is a crop below normal. In one year farmers increased their potato crop 142,000,000 bushels and got for the bigger crop $242,000,000 less than they got for a small crop the year before. In 1924 they got $300,000,000 more for their corn than they got the following year for a corn crop 600,000,000 bushels bigger. The same thing applies to cotton. It doesn't apply to automobiles or to steel.

All in one day the Prince of Wales is promoted in the army, navy, and royal air force. The wise British separate their air force from the other two. He is vice-admiral of the fleet, lieutenant-general in the army, air marshal of the flying fleet.

The young prince is made to realize that there are advantages in being "born right."

On the other hand it is probably more satisfactory to work to the top without help, like Napoleon, or Nelson.

A gentleman, described as "Red" would apply a Russian idea to New York city and stop payment on the city's debt, principal and interest, as Russia stopped payment on the czar's bonds.

Also the New Yorker would reduce all public salaries, using the money to pay $25 a week to everybody out of a job until each individual found a job.

As half the people in New York are working for less than $25 a week now, there would probably be many out of a job for some time.

$9206 Tax Shortage Revealed by Audit

Cash discrepancies aggregating $9,206.12 in the accounts of Ervin W. Sweetser, treasurer and tax collector of the town of Chelmsford, were found in an audit of the town's accounts for the period from January 1, 1929, to July 7, 1930, made by the state division of accounts, according to a report filed today with selectmen by Director Theodore N. Waddell.

The audit was made by Edward H. Fenton, chief accountant of the division.

"In checking the accounts of the town treasurer and tax collector cash discrepancies were disclosed aggregating $9,206.12," the report stated. "In addition claims have been made that taxes have been paid, which, when substantiated by proof of payment, will increase the shortage correspondingly.

"As noted in previous audits, it is apparent that the treasurer made no effort to effect an accurate reconciliation of the cash-book balance with the amount of cash actually on hand and on deposit in the bank.

"The checkbook records were found to be incomplete. It being evident that the treasurer did not reconcile the bank account with statements furnished by the bank in which the town funds are deposited.

"Toward the completion of the audit, the treasurer and collector was informed of the discrepancies in his accounts, and on August 23, 1930, he deposited in the town treasury the sum of $10,000 to cover the total cash discrepancy of $9,206.12 existing as of July 7, 1930, leaving a balance of $793.88 to his credit."

Sweetser resigned on Aug. 30 and was replaced by Harold C. Peterson, who is also town clerk of Chelmsford.

Braves Field, Sept. 3—Bunching hits off Ben Cantwell in the sixth and seventh innings, the Giants scored a 5 to 3 victory over the Braves in the first game of their double-header here this afternoon.

The Braves could do little with Clarence Mitchell, veteran southpaw, who started for the Giants, and were limited to five scattered singles, all their runs coming when helpless before Heving who hurled the last two frames.

Jugoslav Prisoner on Trial for Terrorism Confesses Assassination Scheme

Trieste, Italy, Sept. 3 (AP)—The authorities announced today that one of the 18 Jugo-Slavian prisoners on trial here for terrorism had given the court a written confession of a plot against the life of Premier Mussolini.

The confession stated that the assassination attempt was to take place within a few days. The name of the would-be assassin defendant was held secret and no further details were given.

If Duce has been the object of several attempts on his life, he has escaped death in some of these occasions has been almost remarkable.

The confession was announced at the third day of the trial opened today. The defendants were taken from their cells where they were kept in the courtroom and lined up for cross examination.

Mercer, Pa., Sept. 3 (AP)—A Cleveland-to-New York mail plane was badly damaged in making a forced landing at the air field here early today. The pilot, Charles Haas, suffered cuts and bruises about the body.

60 BATTLE FIRE IN HOSPITAL

Sixty employes of the Massachusetts General Hospital, including ordering house officers and nurses, fought a small fire in a cotton storage room in the basement of the main hospital building in Allen st. this afternoon.

The fire inconvenienced none of the patients and it is doubtful if any knew of it until it was extinguished.

An auxiliary box alarm summoned apparatus which approached the hospital without the usual noise. When firemen arrived they found the flames already controlled by hand extinguishers and small hose lines. Smoke drifted into the operating room and a waiting room, neither of which was occupied, and was carried outside through ventilation shafts without penetrating any of the other rooms.

Flames are believed to have originated from combustion among bales of cotton. Damage was placed at $100.

COSTE READY TO HOP OFF TOMORROW FOR TEXAS

New York Reception Follows Luncheon Given by the Advertising Club

New York, Sept. 3—France's d'Artagnan of the air, Dieudonne Coste, charted the course of his scarlet "7" today toward new conquests of the air.

While the salvos of a city's greeting boomed about him the French aviator prepared to set out tomorrow with his comrade co-pilot, Maurice Bellonte, on a 10-hour nonstop flight to Dallas, Tex., to claim the $25,000 Easterwood prize.

When that flight is done, he announced, his face red bi[illegible] he will be flown back to France over the north Atlantic by Paul Codos, who has played Porthos to Coste's d'Artagnan in flights throughout the other half of the world.

Fears that souvenir hunters had ripped so many pieces from the fuselage of the "7" last night at Curtiss Field that it could not take off for Dallas without extensive repairs were dispelled this afternoon when mechanics reported that they were making rapid progress in readying it for the flight half way across the United States.

HOP TOMORROW

Coste and Bellonte, scarcely rested from their triumphant flight without a stop from Paris to New York, will set out at 8 o'clock (E. S. T.) tomorrow morning for Dallas, reaching there before nightfall. On their way back, or after they return, they will drop in at Washington to pay their respects to President Hoover.

The people of New York welcomed the French fliers with a rocketing greeting unmatched in many months.

It was a big parade, and a warm welcome from Mayor Walker was extended at the civic reception.

Coste himself sounded its solemnest note and brought a luncheon throng to its feet in throaty cheers when he said at the Advertising Club:

"The demonstration of our flight has brought our two countries closer together. If that is possible. It was shown that distance can never happen again. We will carry this memory of your reception in our hearts for all our lives, and we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. The joy in our faces reflects our gratitude.

The airmen found themselves surrounded this morning, long before their official reception began, by a world-wide acclaim.

Tailors bobbed in and out of their hotel suite, putting the last touches on new clothes ordered last night and fashioned through the night by many deft fingers.

The fliers arrived with only their greasy coveralls and flying togs, and needed presentable attire for

Conductor Held in Attack on Lawyer

Charged with knocking down Atty. Albert T. Hayes on Bromfield st. today, Fred T. Worcester, 55, a conductor on the Boston & Albany railroad, was arraigned in municipal court and released on $300 bail for a hearing Sept. 9. Worcester met the lawyer by appointment and an argument ensued. Hayes was representing the owners of a restaurant with whom Worcester had had trouble.

HURRICANE HITS SANTO DOMINGO

Miami, Fla., Sept. 3 (AP)—R. A. Gray, government meteorologist here, reported the receipt of radio advices that a 136-mile-an-hour wind was recorded in Santo Domingo city at 12:12 p. m., E.S.T., indicating, he said, that a tropical disturbance reported south of the Island of Haiti this morning had recurved and is passing east of the city of Santo Domingo.

This announcement was made today by a law firm which stated that the association will be incorporated as a non-profit organization with memberships ranging in price from $1 to $25. The building would be remodled into a museum and clubhouse.

Coste on the telephone before 9 a. m. talking to his pretty wife in Paris—but it was just a private conversation and at the end of the line, it next, nobody listened in.

Curtiss Field mechanics today went over the Question Mark carefully and said they found no damage beyond a small hole on the bottom side of the lower wing, which would take about five minutes to repair. They said it did not appear to have been made with a knife and could have been made by striking a bird or some other object in the air.

Late today Coste and Bellonte will go to Curtiss Field and inspect their plane, to see that it is made ready for tomorrow's hopoff.

At 9 o'clock in the morning they will set out on their ten-hour flight to Dallas, and there they will remain only long enough to rest and overhaul their motor before starting back to New York.

They will visit Washington, either on their way home from Dallas or on a separate trip to be made after they return. Plans for their reception by President Hoover are still incomplete.

AT CITY LUNCHEON

Coste and Bellonte spoke before a sound news camera today before proceeding to the Advertising Club, where they were guests of the city at luncheon.

Coste, who did most of the talking for the pair, said that they were proud to have back-tracked the Lindbergh trail, and then, addressing himself directly to the French people, he said:

"We had difficulties but we overcame them. In short, we are here. That is good."

Bellonte then spoke a few words and the two fliers embraced, each bestowing the customary kiss on the cheek of the other.

Codos, who will attempt the flight back to Paris in the Question Mark, has long been associated with Coste in aviation, having flown with him as mechanic and co-pilot on several record-breaking flights.

He was with Coste when the latter crashed on an attempted flight to Indo-China in the winter of 1929, and with him also when he set three new air records for closed circuit flight. It was Bellonte, however, who flew with Coste to Manchuria last year to set the distance record for straight line flight of more than 5,000 miles.

Codos is a World War flier, and for several years was a regular pilot on the Paris-London airline across the channel, probably the best-known and most-traveled of all airlines of the world.

Coste often called the "Lindbergh of France" and the "D'Artagan of the Air," with his co-pilot, Bellonte, today modestly accepted the homage of the world in recognition of their historical achievement in making the first direct non-stop flight from Paris to New York.

They made the epochal journey in 38 hours 18½ minutes, triumphing magnificently over the elements that sent Nungesser and Coli, their fellow countrymen, and eight others who hazarded the westward airgrip across the Atlantic to their deaths.

Capt. Coste and Bellonte have been invited to a dinner at the Hotel Roosevelt this evening in honor of the four German fliers who recently completed a flight by a series of hops from Germany to New York, landing their seaplane off the Battery. These are Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, Fritz Albrecht, Johann Hack and Edward Zimmer.

The dinner is being given by the German-American conference, consisting of 25 German-American associations in the greater city, and will climax a day of official receptions to the French airmen.

President Hoover, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Rear Admiral Byrd, Rulers of nations all over the globe and distinguished persons in all lines of endeavor hailed the French-men's feat as one of the most remarkable in the annals of aviation. The entire world sent its praises.

ALL HAIL COSTE

More than ever, Coste stands forth among aviators as a beau ideal—a perfect combination of dash and prudence, courage and fortitude, experience and technical skill.

"A great flight, admirably executed," was the enthusiastic comment of Col. Lindbergh.

He stood on the balcony of one of the hangars at Curtiss Airport and watched Coste's powerful, scarlet hued plane, the "Question Mark," swoop in from the East through the gathering dusk and come to a perfect landing in the dead center of the field as 10,000 spectators roared a tumultuous welcome.

Coste and Bellonte covered 6600 kilometers, or about 4100 miles and when they landed they had 100 gallons of gasoline left, sufficient for nearly three hours more of flight.

Col. Lindbergh's eastward crossing of the Atlantic on that never-to-be-forgotten solo hop from New York to Paris was made in faster time than Coste and Bellonte negotiated the western flight but, because of the obstacle of severe headwinds, the westward jump is generally regarded as the more difficult.

Lindbergh, in May, 1927, flew from New York to Paris in 33 hours and 29 minutes, which was 3 hours and 50 minutes quicker than the two Frenchmen made the westward flight from Paris to New York.

Coste and Bellonte made a graceful landing at Curtiss Field last night at 7:13, Boston daylight saving time, after circling the field three times with and escort of five naval reserve and six Curtiss-Wright planes.

Coste's official statement of the flight was:

"The departure from Paris was decided upon very quickly. We found that we would have to go by the northern route, by the arc of the circle. After leaving Ireland we ran into dirty weather, and had to fly higher than we wished.

"Later we came down to a low pressure area and found a tail wind. It took us 37 hours to reach here.

"The worst trouble experienced, all of which was weather, was in leaving Ireland, in the center of the ocean and in the vicinity of Halifax."

Dallas Plans for Warm Reception to Fliers

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 3 (AP)—With uncertainty cleared away as to the terms of the $25,000 offer to Capt. Dieudonne Coste for a successful Paris-to-New York-Dallas flight, plans were being formulated here today for a warm reception to the French transatlantic flier and his companion, Maurice Bellonte, when they complete the hop to end of their trail-blazing air journey from Europe to Texas.

Before news was received from Paris that the contract between the airmen and Col. William Easterwood, Dallas capitalist, who made the $25,000 offer, called for a take-off within 72 hours after reaching New York, it had been understood here payment of the purse was conditioned on a stop of not more than 24 hours in New York.

The contract had not been received here, however, and local representatives of Col. Easterwood who is in Europe, were dependent upon meagre information from him.

Hoover to Dine Coste, Bellonte After Texas Flight

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP)—President Hoover made plans today to honor Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte at luncheon Monday on their visit to Washington after their Dallas flight.

He received a reply from the famous pilot to the congratulations extended by him last night. Coste wired:

"We beg you, Mr. President, to accept our deepest appreciation of your kindest words, which have touched both of us very profoundly. The American and French people have had the great privilege of always entertaining the most friendly relations. Nothing would please us more than the thought that our successful flight might contribute to strengthen these reciprocal feelings."

Coli's Widow, Daughter Cable Congratulations

Marseilles, Sept. 3 (AP)—The widow and daughter of Capt. Francois Coli, who vanished with Capt. Charles Nungesser in an attempt to fly across the Atlantic in 1927, today sent cable congratulations to Coste and Bellonte.

"We congratulate you on the glorious exploit which our dear departed one so greatly desired to achieve," the message said.

Hawks Calls Coste Hop "Foolish" in Land Plane

Kansas City, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Kansas City Star says that Capt. Frank Hawks, transcontinental flier, informed that Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte had succeeded in their transatlantic hop, credited the Frenchmen with "a great display of nerve," but added that "it was a foolish thing to do."

Hawks, holder of both East and West transcontinental speed records, was quoted by the newspaper as saying:

"I can't see that he contributes a thing to aviation. It was foolhardy to attempt the flight in a land ship even though it was magnificently courageous.

"Flights across the ocean in land ships prove nothing except nerve and luck. When one is made in a seaplane, then something will have been accomplished."

YACHTMEN LOSE FENCE FIGHT

The city of Boston can play in its own yard if it wants to, and can fence it in for any purpose, Judge William C. Walt in Supreme Court ruled today.

His ruling was against a petition of Owen Gallagher of South Boston for a writ of mandamus to compel Paul Kelleher, Superintendent of Parks, and John F. Long to remove a fence from city property adjoining the Boston Yacht Club in South Boston.

Gallagher contended the fence constituted an obstruction to persons who desire to use that part of the beach for bathing.

Justice Walt ruled that inasmuch as the city owns the land, it can erect fences if it chooses.

BOSTON CLUE TO VERMONT BODY

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 3 (AP)—Atty.-Gen. J. Ward Carver and Edwin C. Brown, state detective, today announced they expected important developments within the next few days in their investigation to identify the body of a woman found in a Chester pasture more than a year ago.

They declined to reveal the nature of the developments, but said they had been working on information furnished by Boston police that the body might be that of Alys L. Thatcher of that city, who disappeared in July, 1929. They were not greatly encouraged by this suggestion, however, because the description of the Thatcher woman and the dead woman did not tally.

When the body was found in August, 1929, it remained unidentified for months when George Packard identified clothing and other effects as those of his wife. Soon after Packard's re-marriage, his first wife re-appeared.

Paris to New York Flight Worth $2,000,000 to Coste

Paris, Sept. 3 (AP)—Matin today said that from remarks of Dieudonne Coste recently to friends it was deduced he had assured himself the sum of $2,000,000 with success of his flight through various contracts he has signed.

Today's press stressed that Coste's successful flight meant much more than a great adventure, but would bring great prestige to French aviation and industries.

French and American flags were flown side by side today in many parts of the capital and from the big City Hall. Jean Castellane, president of the municipal council, sent a long cablegram of congratulations to the fliers.

Home Stoned

POLICE GUARD JUDGE SULLIVAN

A large stone was hurled through a window of the home of Charles S. Sullivan in Charlestown last night apparently in an effort to injure or intimidate him or members of his family.

The rock shattered a living room window on the second floor of the house at 1 Laurel st., just off Monument sq., and showered with glass the judge's wife, Mrs. Mary F. Sullivan, his daughter, Ruth, 22, and a girl friend of the latter. None was injured.

Neither Judge Sullivan nor his son, Representative Charles S. Sullivan, Jr., was at home. Police of City sq. station were notified and a guard wa.. placed about the home.

Motive for the attack, he was inclined to place in the political campaign of his son who is seeking re-election to the House.

BRITISH SCORE EXPULSION OF HEARST

London Press Is Amused at the Action of France and Welcomes Publisher

Universal Service Special Cable

London, Sept. 3—Editorial comment by today's London newspapers concerning the action taken by the French government against Mr. William Randolph Hearst follows:

DAILY EXPRESS

"According to their temperament, some people in France and in America may be mightily amused and others hotly moved by the expulsion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst from French soil. It was long premeditated and appears to have been ceremoniously performed.

"But for us in this country, there can only be one feeling about the matter. France by her action has sent a distinguished American to seek our shores. We are glad of it. So we shall be glad of all similar actions which produce similar results.

"Mr. Hearst, despite allegations of anti-British feeling which have been made against him, is a good American who has often proved himself a kindly friend to this country. He will be warmly received here; warmly now and as often as he offers us the chance.

"The more Americans we are able to welcome to England, the better pleased we shall be. We and they may smile at one another's forms and symbols. But our instinct of good fellowship is, in the end, the same as theirs—and sound at that."

DAILY HERALD

"Mr. Hearst has been called the Czar of American Journalism. He has now taken the official knockout from the French government, which has expelled him from the ring of France.

"But his comments from the ringside seat in England are so malicious that most people feel he has scored. 'The man recovered from the bite; the dog it was that died.' That is the claim they are the most logical nation of Europe and have the liveliest sense of humor.

"These qualities belong, of course, to the French people, not to their cabinets."

NEWS-CHRONICLE

"Few more idiotic actions have been perpetrated by a civilized and presumably intelligent government than the expulsion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst from France. We hold no brief for Mr. Hearst, but what possible harm can his mere presence in France do? Or what possible good can be done by insulting him in this impotent way?

"The spectacle of a great nation resenting upon an individual real or fancied wrongs is odious when the revenge is effective. When, as in this case, the victim is none the worse and is advertised to the world as a man so powerful that a foreign government does not harbor him within its territory, it is silly."

J. P. Morgan to Vote in England Hereafter

London, Sept. 3 (INS)—J. P. Morgan, American financier, is entitled to vote in future English elections as "a naturalized Englishman," the local registration court officer at Watford, Eng., ruled today.

The court officer's ruling was announced in answer to questions arising from the appearance of J. P. Morgan's name in the new voters' lists, just made public.

Names of Americans who own property in England frequently find their way into the voters' lists, in error, but they usually are not permitted to vote.

Wives of French Fliers Plan to Rejoin Them in U. S.

Paris, Sept. 3 (AP)—Restored by their night's rest after the long strain of awaiting word of arrival of their husbands at Curtiss Field, New York, Mmes. Coste and Mme. Bellonte today turned their thoughts to their own New York trips.

Mme. Coste, who is a beautiful Russian actress, plans to leave within four days to join Dieudonne—his name means "Gift of God"—in America. But Mme. Doris Bellonte, the co-pilot's Irish wife, will not come so soon.

Because of various considerations she will be unable to sail for three weeks. Mme. Coste will remain in America only one week, returning here to complete cinema contracts. Even so she is determined to go.

Mme. Coste bore the long strain of the fliers' trip better than did Mme. Bellonte, who always is restless when her husband is flying. Both women were highly enthusiastic on their husbands' success. Mme. Coste spent much of the early evening at a newspaper office, receiving there the latest word of the progress of the plane down the New England coast.

Mme. Coste was overjoyed that she was able to hear her husband's voice twice this morning. She had his promise of a telephone call when once he should reach New York, but it was some time before he could complete this arrangement.

FRANCE CHEERS SUCCESS OF HER GREAT AIRMEN

Celebration of Their Feat Extends to Every Hamlet Throughout Nation

Paris, Sept. 3 (AP)—All France today acclaimed the feat of two of her greatest airmen, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, in making the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic from Paris to New York.

The Government announced shortly after news of the landing of the fliers at Curtiss field was received, and while the capital was experiencing the first mad hours of celebration, that Coste would be made a commander of the Legion of Honor.

President Gaston Doumergue sent a personal message of congratulation. The cable companies said they handled a tremendous file of congratulatory telegrams for the two fliers.

GREAT REJOICING

Tenseness prevailed throughout the capital all last evening as loud speakers boomed their message of the plane's progress down the American coast toward New York. So many such flights have gone wrong that instinctively Parisians felt something also might happen to mar this one.

When finally, a few minutes after midnight, there came word of sighting the Breguet plane over Curtiss Field the thousands gathered around every loud speaker hipped and hurrahed, clapped each other on the back, shouted, and quieted down only to hear other details of the landing and New York's wonderful reception to the two men.

AIRMEN ARE PROUD

Many Parisians never went to bed at all, scrambling home at dawn to make their toilettes before going to work this morning. Radio broadcasts carried the details of the landing the length and breadth of the land and there was not even a small hamlet which did not hear the news almost as soon as Paris.

The deepest joy perhaps was that of airmen, who more than any others were able to appreciate the extent of Coste's victory over the elements. Louis Blerlot, the first man to fly across the English Channel and an old friend of both the aviators and of Col. Lindbergh, said:

"Their splendid exploit can be considered as one of the greatest victories of science over nature. The two pilots awaited a propitious moment and prepared for their flight with the most minute care. Their flight cannot be considered as making Franco-American aerial relations an immediate possibility, but it is a stage. We must have patience."

Von Gronau Exalts Coste for Twice Flying Overseas

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP)—Two unusual facts marked the Paris-New York flight of Dieudonne Costa and Maurice Bellonte in the opinion of Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator, who himself flew the Atlantic last week.

Von Gronau said it was unusual that the Frenchmen reached their full destination, other east-west flights having ended at the edge of the continent, and that it was rare for a flier twice to cross the ocean as Coste did.

"With so much depending upon chance, the fact that a flier has once been successful in reaching his goal does not assure him that he will be able to repeat the performance," said the German. "Most fliers would be content with the one flight and would not try a second time."

Nation Is Tuning in On Big Coste Fete

New York, Sept. 3 (INS)—The nation listened in on New York's welcome to Coste and Bellonte today.

Through the National Broadcasting Company network, addresses at the Advertising Club's luncheon to the fliers at 1:45 p. m. (E.D.T.), was heard. At 3 p. m., the official exercises at City Hall was to be broadcast.

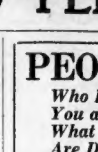
Mme. Jeritza Not to Appear in "Home" Opera

Washington, Sept. 3—Mme. Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will not be included among the cast of the Vienna opera stars in their presentation of a movie opera which will be presented soon in the Vienna Opera House, professional home of Mme. Jeritza.

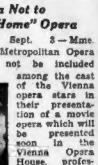


Mme. Jeritza

The famous soprano's refusal to take part in the film is due to a clause in her Metropolitan opera contract which forbids any motion picture activity. Jeritza is scheduled to sing here during the coming season as one of the attractions of Philharmonic course. She recently completed a season of opera at Vienna and Budapest.

Peggy Joyce's "Ex" Weds Woman Scribe

New York, Sept. 3—Romance, that began when Geraldine Fitch, New York newspaperwoman, was assigned to interview Count Gosta Morner, former husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, eight months ago will culminate in the marriage soon of the young newspaperwoman and the Swedish nobleman. Count Morner married Peggy Hopkins Joyce in 1923 and they were divorced in Paris in 1924.

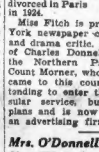


Count Morner

Miss Fitch is prominent in New York newspaper circles as an art and drama critic. She is the niece of Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad. Count Morner, who is 33 years old, came to this country while intending to enter the Swedish consular service, but changed his plans and is now connected with an advertising firm.

Mrs. O'Donnell Wins New Flight Laurels

Chicago, Sept. 3—Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, winner of the recent women's air derby and mother of two children, added new laurels to her flying record when she won the women's free-for-all race for the Mrs. Robert McCormick trophy at the national air races yesterday.

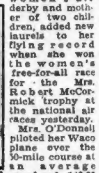


Gladys O'Donnell

Mrs. O'Donnell piloted her Waco plane over the 50-mile course at an average speed of 149.90 miles per hour. Mrs. O'Donnell won the 2245-mile women's derby from her home town, Long Beach, Calif., to the national air races in Chicago.

Spanish Noble Loses $60,000; Quits Gaming

Biarritz, Sept. 3—The Marquis de Portago, Spanish grandee and intimate of King Alfonso and one of the world's foremost gamblers, asserted yesterday that he was through with gambling forever. The occasion for the sensational resolution was his loss in a single sitting at the Casino here when he dropped approximately $60,000.



Marquis De Portago

The Marquis is here playing in the International polo matches in which he is a conspicuous figure. His wife, the former Mrs. Frank Mackay, of Chicago, is in London. Portago has been an inveterate gambler and some of his losses have been quite large. Last season at Biarritz he is believed to have dropped $160,000.

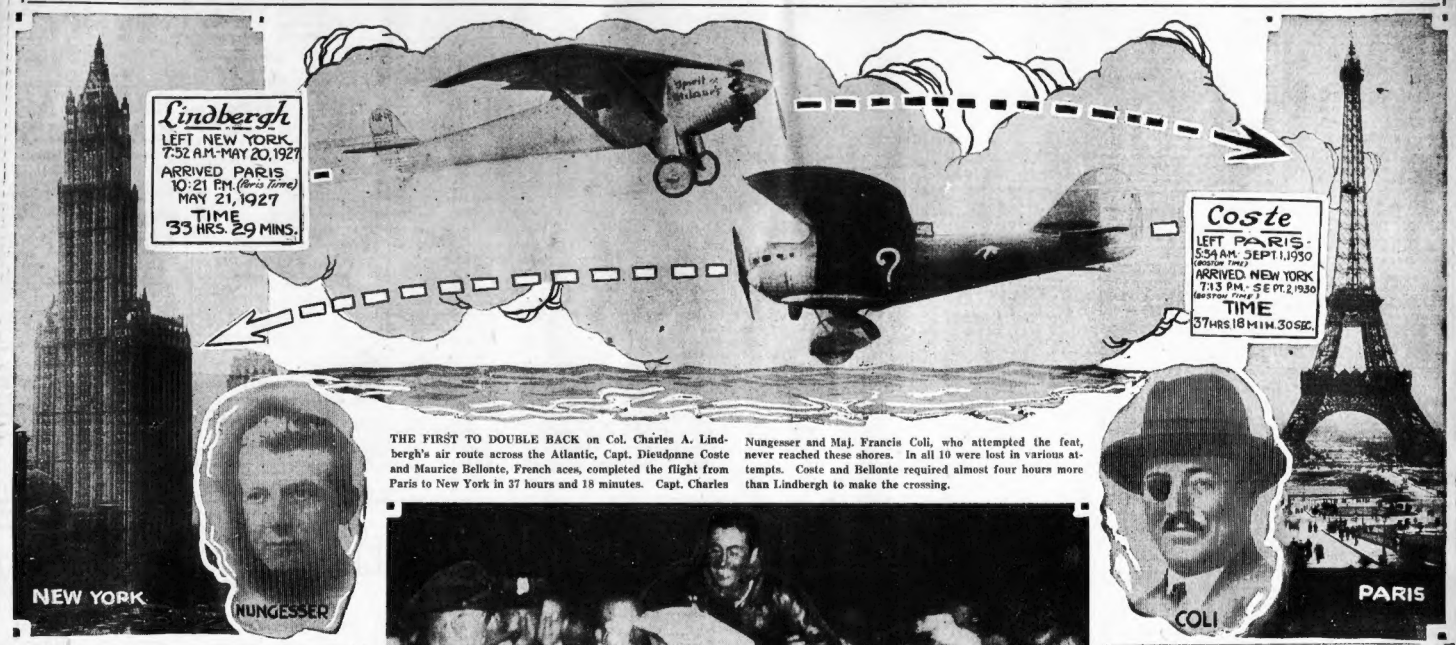
COSTE AND BELLONTE "CARRY ON" FOR NUNGESSER AND COLI



THE FIRST TO DOUBLE BACK on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's air route across the Atlantic, Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French aces, completed the flight from Paris to New York in 37 hours and 18 minutes. Capt. Charles Nungesser and Maj. Francis Coli, who attempted the feat, never reached these shores. In all 10 were lost in various attempts. Coste and Bellonte required almost four hours more than Lindbergh to make the crossing.

ON THE SHOULDERS OF ADMIRERS. Back on the earth after 37 hours in the air, Dieudonne Coste, famous French war ace, was borne aloft in triumph by a hero-worshipping crowd when he stepped from his plane, the Question Mark, at the flying field at Valley Stream, Long Island. With Coste on his record-breaking Paris to New York flight was another famed veteran of the air, Maurice Bellonte. Curtis Field Rangers re-echoed the tumult. (International photo.)

High Speed of Plane Won for Coste, Says Lindy

New York, Sept. 3 (AP)—Speed is believed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to have been the determining factor between success and failure in the Paris-to-New York flight of Coste and Bellonte.

"Of course," said Col. Lindbergh, "with this speed Capt. Coste had other characteristics which assured him of his success. But in his careful preparations, in which he went into every detail, he realized that easily recognizable fact that a plane with speed and power alone would see him through.

"Capt. Coste is one of the most experienced long distance fliers in the world. On his record distance flight last year he had ample opportunity to realize that his plane had stamina, speed and staying power over great distances."

The Coste-Bellonte plane has a high speed close to 160 miles an hour, faster than any other machine to attempt the Atlantic crossing. For the first 600 miles Coste, with the aid of a wind of approximately 15 miles an hour, made an average speed of about 140 miles. During the last stage of the flight he averaged about 100 miles an hour.

"The westward flight across the Atlantic is considerably more difficult due to the head winds and the fact that the worst weather conditions are encountered toward the end of the flight," said Lindbergh.

Coste and Bellonte Win Promotion in French Army

Paris, Sept. 3 (AP)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, among other rewards, will be promoted by the French government in the air force reserve list for their Paris-New York flight.

Coste, who now ranks as captain, will soon be promoted to major. Bellonte, a non-commissioned officer, will be made second lieutenant.

It also was announced last night that Coste would be made a commander of the Legion of Honor.

Find Andree Secrets in Hidden Notebook

Copyright, 1930, and all Rights Reserved in North and South America and in Japan, by The Associated Press.

Tromsoe, Norway, Sept. 3 (AP)—Salomon August Andree's pioneer polar aeronautical expedition, buried for 33 years by the snows of Arctic White Island, today gave up in the hospital here was experts believe is the secret of its fate.

Securely wrapped in an undershirt, the day-by-day record of the explorers' tramp across the polar ice from the spot where their balloon was wrecked, presumably in latitude 83 north, to White Island, where they perished, was found on Andree's body at Tromsoe Hospital.

Andree in death had arranged for its protection and ultimate issuance to the world. As the numbness of death stole over him, he lay down upon his records and died shielding them with his body.

BOOK FILLED WITH WRITING

The new diary found today also proved to be a treasure trove. It is filled with writing, from cover to cover, and the writing is legible.

In interest it wholly supersedes the book first discovered by Dr. Gunnar Horn on White Island. It was announced that Dr. Horn's find bore writing only on its first pages.

A formal statement issued by the experts, Hedren and Lithberg, states that only the skeletons of the bodies of Andree and Steinberg remain intact. The organic parts were very much deteriorated, and the clothing, though fairly well preserved, had been much torn, probably by animals.

BODIES IDENTIFIED

"After the remains of the Andree expedition had been transferred to the hospital at Tromsoe," the statement says, "the experts began their work at 1 p. m. Tuesday.

Simultaneously were transferred to the hospital such belongings aboard the Bratvaag as the sledge, the canvas boat with its contents, and objects found in Andree's camp on White Island, including the log book and diary found in the inner pocket of Andree's jacket.

"So far the remains of two men have been found. The organic parts are very deteriorated, but some of the garments are more or less fully preserved.

"From the initials on the clothes it emerges that these two men are the expedition's chief, Salomon August Andree, and his scientific assistant, Nils Strindberg.

FINDING OF NOTEBOOKS

"A find of special interest was made on the back of the body. This consisted of two books wrapped in an undershirt and placed inside his clothes against his back.

"The first of these books contains only some geographical observations on the first pages.

"The second book was a day book to record the journey on foot over the ice. This book is the most important thus far found to tell of the fate of the Andree expedition."

LEGION INVITES COSTE HERE

Coste and Bellonte were invited today to be the American Legion's guests of honor at the national convention here, starting Oct. 6.

The invitation was extended to them through Hon. Jules Henry, acting French ambassador, by Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, at the request of the American Legion Corp. Andrew wired Henry as follows:

"The fourth republic could not be more happily represented at the American Legion convention in Boston, the week beginning Oct. 6, than by your heroic compatriots and our own war comrades, Coste and Bellonte.

"The American Legion craves the honor of their presence and the opportunity of entertaining them. Pray extend to them this invitation and urge them to shape their plans so as to be the Legion's special guests of honor at the convention.

"The President of the United States will be with us on Oct. 6. We want Coste and Bellonte then and throughout the week."

Judge Good Named to Permanent Post

Judge Francis P. Good was given a permanent appointment as judge of the municipal court of Boston today, when the governor's council confirmed his nomination. He takes the place of Judge James P. Parmenter who resigned.

Other appointments confirmed were those of Judge Colver J. Stone, of Andover, trial justice, reappointed; Joseph W. Lewandowski, special justice of Holyoke district court, vice Russell J. Davenport, resigned; Dr. Frederick H. Baker, medical examiner, 12th Worcester district, reappointment.

Coste's Plane All Scarred, But Brave and No Enigma

New York, Sept. 3 (AP)—Like the outside of a much-traveled suitcase, the Coste-Bellonte plane Question Mark tells a silent but eloquent story of the many places it has seen.

In a tri-colored hand beneath the upper wing is lettered the names of the cities it has been flown to by Dieudonne Coste, her owner-pilot. In French spelling these are: Paris, Acores, Tuhkan, Karbine, Shanghai, Hanoi, Calcutta, Karachi, Alep, Athenes, Rome.

"Paris-Acores-Paris, 5000 kms.; Paris-Tsihkan-Record du Monde, 7905 kms.; Hanoi-Paris, 11,450 kms., 4 Jours, 13 Heures; Avec 500 Kos Decharge-Duree, 23h. 22m. 42s.; Vitesse, 214 kms.-353; Record du Monde Avec 1000 kos de charge distance 3350 kms. Duree 16h. 1m. 30s."

HUNT ESCAPED CONVICTS HERE

A pool racketeer and an auto thief, both desperate criminals, were sought in Greater Boston today following their escape last night from the Norfolk camp of the state prison.

George K. Gilbert, 33, payroll robber and Boston's original hijacker, and Joseph Lawrence, 36, thief and would-be murderer, are the fugitives.

The manner in which they eluded guards at the camp and the widespread search that immediately followed their disappearance led to the belief that their flight was aided by accomplices in an automobile.

Gilbert was serving a seven-year sentence for a payroll robbery and had a similar sentence to serve for kidnaping and robbing Joseph Sherman, Boston gambler.

Lawrence was serving eight to 15 years for nearly killing a citizen who was aiding a Boston policeman in arresting him for auto theft in Copley sq. Both were transferred from Charlestown only two months ago.

Dine and Dance

Jimmie Gallagher at Palais d'Or

Jimmie Gallagher and his orchestra are back on the job again at Palais d'Or, 281 Huntington ave., after a successful engagement at Ocean Gardens.

Jimmie plans an active program this season with a policy of something special every night. Tonight will be theatrical guest night. During the evening there will be plenty of dance music. Tomorrow night will be balloon night. On Friday night there will be a dance contest with gold prizes for the winners. Surprise night will be observed every Tuesday night.

Fall Season Opens at Cocoanut Grove

Several new features inaugurated the fall season at the Cocoanut Grove, Labor Day. Mickie Alpert, master of ceremonies, is offering an excellent floor show, having engaged Josephine Bernhardt and Franklyn Graham, dancers. Another highlight of the show is Nina Sanoff, former Ziegfeld beauty, whose dances have won her wide favor. George Bromfield is an added attraction.

Mickie Alpert

Lou Klayman and his orchestra furnish a brand of unsurpassed music. Angelo Lippi, maitre d'hotel, has augmented an attractive menu with many appropriate dishes for warm evenings. Thursday night, as usual, is theatrical guest night.

Noon Luncheon at Barn Cafe

Fred Soracco

In past seasons this uptown dine and dance resort only opened evenings, but because so many requests a new policy with dancing during the luncheon courses has been arranged. Frankie Barber's orchestra will be featured. Manager Soracco has eliminated all cover charges.

Russell Howard Back at Symphony

Russell Howard has returned from his vacation and resumed his act as master of ceremonies at Chin D. Yong's Symphony Restaurant, 253 Huntington ave., next to Symphony Hall.

Russell Howard

To usher in the fall season, an all-colored revue has been cooked for the week. Frankie Maynard has arranged his band, and with specialties during the dance numbers, continues to make a hit.

YOUNG BANDITS ROB PARKERS

A trio of youthful bandits held up and robbed three parked couples in Braintree late last night and later assaulted a Quincy motorist.

John Connolly of Vassal st., Wollaston; William Watson of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, and George Lavesque of Willard st., West Quincy, were robbed of small amounts while parked with companions in a woods road in South Braintree near Great Pond. A gold watch was also taken from Connolly.

One of the robbers displayed a pistol and the second a blackjack. The third remained at the wheel of their car, a small coach.

In East Squantum st., Atlantic, they held a Wellington Church of Holmes st., Norfolk Downs, demanding money. When he demurred, one of the robbers hit him on the head with the blackjack, inflicting a slight wound.

Midget Dirigibles Being Built by Navy

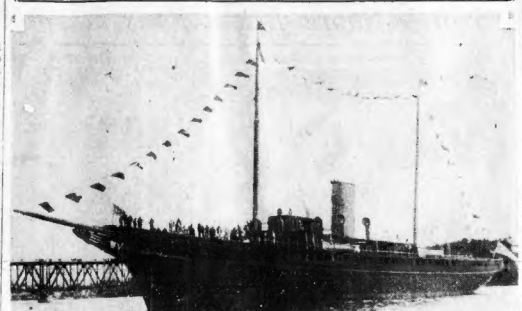
Cape May, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP)—Construction of the first of a number of midget sight-passenger dirigibles, to be known as "air yachts," has been started at the naval hangars here. The craft, which have a weight of 800 pounds and a hydrogen gas capacity of 100 cubic feet, will be assembled within 10 days.

Robinson Dies at Naples After Fall

Capri, Italy, Sept. 3—John Randolph Robinson, 26 years old, of New York, United States vice consul at Naples, died yesterday from the effects of a fall from a window of the Hotel Quisisana, on the island of Capri.

After falling several stories to a cement pavement, Robinson was taken to a hospital suffering from bone fractures and internal injuries.

Palatial Morgan Yacht on the Rocks



THE CORSAIR, J. P. Morgan's $2,500,000 yacht launched in April, is fast on the rocks in Penobscot Bay, and an attempt of tugs to float her at high tide today failed. She ran half her length onto a ledge and pontoons may be needed to float her.

FAIL TO FLOAT MORGAN YACHT

Islesboro, Me., Sept. 3 (AP)—The yacht Corsair, $2,500,000 floating palace launched for J. P. Morgan in April, remained aground on a rocky point off Minot Island in Gilkey's harbor today despite the efforts of two tugs and her own engines to pull her off at high tide.

The yacht, with Junius Morgan, son of the owner, and his wife aboard, ran onto the rocks last night as it was entering the harbor here. It was traveling between six and eight knots.

The vessel's bow at high tide was four feet above the water, and at low tide one-third of the vessel was clear. There was a four-foot list to port at low tide during the night.

First reports said that a number of guests were aboard, but after Mr. and Mrs. Morgan went to the home of relatives at Dark Harbor it was learned they were crossing by themselves when the yacht grounded.

Arrangements were made to lighten the craft by discharging 200 tons of fuel oil during the afternoon. The Coast Guard cutter Kickapoo was requested to steam here from Rockland to aid in pulling the vessel off on the high tide at 9 p. m.

Missing 73 Days

Fire Destroys Old Newbury Mansion

West Newbury, Sept. 3.—In a spectacular fire that was seen in a half dozen towns, the old estate of the late Eben Moody Boynton, inventor and legislator, was destroyed today with loss estimated at $20,000.

Tinted and weather beaten from exposure to the elements on the peak of Pipestave Hill, the three story structure burned like tinder. The glow of the flames in the sky attracted people from as far as Haverhill.

BOSTON MAN IS DEAD IN CRASH

Lawrence, Sept. 3 (AP)—As a result of an automobile crash on the Lawrence-Haverhill road early today, in which Daniel Shea, 23, of Dorchester, was instantly killed, Edward A. Farrell, 26, Tilton N. H., was arraigned here on charges of manslaughter and driving so as to endanger. His case was continued until Friday next.

The accident occurred, police say, when Farrell's machine was forced onto the soft shoulder bordering the road by another machine which sought to pass. Farrell and a third occupant, Wilbur Hunter, 23, of Lynn, were slightly injured.

Deflated Balloon Drops on Auto

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 3—A deflated balloon used in an act at the Rutland Fair dropped 2000 feet here yesterday and smashed through the top of an automobile traveling to the fair.

William Vaughan of Pittsfield was seriously injured and his wife and Howard Chandler of New York were frightened when the bag enveloped the car.

Firestone's Brother Dies of Heart Stroke

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP)—R. J. Firestone, 57, former sales manager and vice-president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., is dead of his home here by heart failure, he was a brother of Harvey S. Firestone, Sr., president of the tire concern.

LOTTERIES HIT AS CRIMINAL

Lotteries are breeders of crime, Judge Francis J. Good declared today in municipal court in fining two defendants $200 each on a charge of setting up and promoting a lottery.

The defendants were Nate Cohen and Joseph Wessler, both of the West End. In sentencing them, Judge Good said:

"It is apparent that you men do not appreciate how serious is the offence with which you are charged.

"Your game is a breeder of crime and you can take this message to your other agents: In the future the maximum fine and sentence will be meted out by this court and probably that will help to clear up the present situation."

Two Shows Nightly at Lido Venice

Preparations are nearing completion for the big opening of the Lido Venice, Boston's evening rendezvous.

Manager John J. Levaggi, announces that he has engaged for the season the 14 piece Casa Loma orchestra, which has made a hit with a number of records and radio broadcasts. Two floor shows will be given each evening, one at 7:15 and again at 12:15. The new master of ceremonies will be Jack Richman. Reservations are now being received for Thursday night, September 11, when a special inaugural dinner will be served.

Yale Fullback Is Accidentally Shot

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 3 (INS)—Wounded in the chest and arms by a shotgun accidentally discharged, Thomas Taylor, Yale University fullback, was suffering serious wounds at a hospital here today. Taylor's brother accidentally kicked over the shotgun at their camp on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Mail Man Retires, 36 Years on Job

Joseph M. Urann, for 36 years a letter carrier in Malden, most of that time in the Baker Hill section, punched out for the last time on the Malden postoffice clock yesterday. He is retired under the new postal ruling.

Before he left the office he was surrounded by a group of carriers and presented a purse of gold. H. C. Pelardeau made the presentation.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear the writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Having been interested and worked for the safety of the public for the past seven years, I believe that thousands of automobile accidents, which have killed so many thousands of people, could be prevented to some extent if a memorial meeting for the thousands of innocent people killed is held at least once a year.

I believe that if a memorial meeting is held every year, it would cause the people to realize how bad the situation of the slaughtering of human beings is.

HYMAN FREEDMAN.

Belittles Talk of Youth Revolting

Editor Boston American:

The constant tapping on our minds right here in Boston about the revolt of youth which seems to be a most popular theme for publicity, is getting also to be tiresome. There is nothing new about the revolt of youth. Youth has been on a rampage, ever since Adam gave Eve apple, Cain, or at any other time, as he considers it dangerous to life and property.

I have often wondered if mothers and fathers whose children at different times have worn costumes in parades, masquerades, recitals, but more especially in schools, realize the danger they are submitting their children to in permitting them to wear costumes made of paper.

Not until a holocaust of this kind happens will the state or city fathers forbid the use of paper costumes to be worn, especially in schools or public buildings where smoking is allowed or where there is a chance of them coming in contact with electric wires, switches or open flames.

What a position of distress a school teacher would be placed in, if any of the children for whom she is responsible were burned through the wearing of such costumes. She would be responsible to the parents of these children as well as the public, besides becoming a defendant in a possible lawsuit.

The state has a fire hazard law, forbidding the use of paper decorations in halls, public buildings, etc. This is a fire danger to a building.

Says Pomeroy Should Get Just Deserts

Editor Boston American:

One frequently reads in this column the plea of good-hearted people to release Jesse Pomeroy from his confinement. Because of the too numerous sob sisters and scientific freaks he has been allves as an "interesting discovery." He has blown up a jail and murdered or tortured over 30 people and still well-meaning persons plead his cause because he was "only a boy!" What it give him his just deserts as any other person so endowed with that murderous streak would be given? When but 14 years old he murdered, outright, two children and was arrested. Only his youth saved him. Would youth save any other boy? I we der!

Where Does One Find A "Universal Woman?"

Editor Boston American:

Why did that woman orator make such a fuss over the need of women doing more for the world than men? This was last Saturday in this city.

There never has been a universal woman to match the universal man. Where among the women can you match Shakespeare, Homer, Sophocles, Virgil, Phidias, Durer, Dante, Goethe, Velasquez, Blake, Cervantes or even in modern times H. L. Mencken who changes his opinions of women so rapidly.

Where are the universal sisters? Have we a woman Beethoven? Where is the universal woman? Please answer in this column and give me some relief in my thinking.

Urges Law to Regulate Places or Marriages

Editor Boston American:

The time is coming when a law should regulate, where marriages should take place. Some people do not regard marriage with any sacredness. They think that it can be performed in any old place.

In my opinion, we are making marriage ceremonies a mere travesty, when we allow it to take place in a balloon, in an aeroplane, in the lion's cage, on top of a skyscraper, on horseback, as happened only a few days ago, in a submarine, etc.

Marriage is not a freak, but a solemn affair and should not be played up in the above styles.

As freaks in marriage ceremonies seemed to be increasing, I thought I would sound this alarm in your letter column and would like to hear the other side.

MALCOLM B. PEEVY.

Minimizes Article by Coolidge on Freedom

Editor Boston American:

Calvin Coolidge, the columnist, writes on many things. Recently in his daily article he said, "While we have sympathy with the aspirations for self government, we realize from the historical development of our own institutions that self government cannot be conferred upon one people by another people but must be acquired by long and painful experience. It is only of gradual growth through many intermediate grades, none of which can be omitted . . ."

That's rich. One of the conditions of the last commercial war was that the free sovereignties of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia should be carved out. They were awarded freedom for several reasons, although the majority of them fought for the Central empires. Ireland, although on the side of victory, was denied this same freedom, because she is held in thrall by the subtlest of nations working under the guise of benevolent paternalism. Cromwell was a good butcher.

Washington won freedom by taking a chance. He won. It is nice to win. Ask the football coaches. Had O. Jesse lost they would have drawn and quartered him. But he won. I wonder what the former President would have done had he lived in those stirring days when there were men here and patriotism and friendship in America.

Women Compete for Cup Donated by Mrs. Adams

MISS ADELAIDE M. BROWN captains one of the two Cohasset Yacht Club crews that are racing against two other crews at Cohasset today for the cup donated by Mrs. Charles Francis Adams. The event is drawing the entire South Shore colony to the clubhouse, from which the four crews set out early today to "sail it off" in the women's national championships. Miss Brown's crew consists of Miss Catherine Bartow and Miss Barbara Fitch. Miss Esther Sears heads the second Cohasset crew, assisted by Miss Helen Swain and Miss Katharine Johnson. Winners from the Eastern Yacht Club, who are competing today, are Mrs. Charles Welch, Miss Isabel Porter and Mrs. Martha Hauser. Miss Carolyn Hunnewell, Miss Jeanette Rothwell and Miss Katharine Bowden are representing the Pleon Yacht Club in the girls' championship races.

MRS. HUGH BANCROFT is hostess today at a large luncheon given at the Cohasset clubhouse for the 60 yachtswomen participating in the races. Mrs. Bancroft's trophy is another coveted prize in the races.

THE NORTH SHORE COLONY will be largely represented this evening when the final concert of the season will be given at Stillington Hall. The artists will be Povla Frijsh, soprano, and Georges Barrere, flutist. Preceding the concert there will be several dinner parties.

Gates - Powning Wedding Marked by Beauty, Simplicity

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY marked the wedding of Miss Jane Powning and Edward Leigh Gates in the tiny rustic Emmanuel chapel near the bride's home in Manchester. The bride might have stepped from the pages of Vogue, so charmingly did she appear in her heavy ivory satin gown with real lace bertha and train. A wreath of pearls bound her golden hair, fastening a tulle veil. She was given in marriage by her father, Henry W. Powning. Like a fashion parade came the six bridesmaids in long pink taffeta frocks and tan hats, and scores of notables from the elite of the North Shore.

CERISE TAFFETA IN PARIS mode becomingly adorned Miss Helen Warren whose debutante sister, Miss Anne, appeared in pale blue print chiffon and lace hat. Miss Ethel Grew, who has lately returned from a trip to Hawaii, was in green lace, Miss Barbara Proctor in filmy blue chiffon and Miss Phyllis Ellsworth was even more vivacious than usual in a smart black and colored print ensemble with felt hat. Handsome Mrs. Albert Storrage, Jr., never looked better. She wore peach crepe and her daughter, Miss Katharine, was in pleated white silk with blue straw hat. Miss Anita Sturgis in flowered chiffon print, and Mrs. Frederick Sears, were among the guests noted chatting on the terrace.

MRS. EDWARD WIGGLESWORTH and her committee are today revelling in the delight of visitors to the flower show at the Topsfield Fair where one of the finest horticultural exhibits in the country has been assembled. Choice flowers from the famed gardens of Castle Hill, the Richard T. Crane, Jr., estate at Ipswich, from Brackenside, the Augustus P. Goodwin place at Hamilton, and the Thomas E. Proctor place in Topsfield vie for honors with Albert C. Burrage's orchids, Dr. Henry Lanzashire's prize blooms and with many others. The fair opens today and continues through four days.

MANY WINNERS OF RIBBONS in recent horse shows about Boston will be among those exhibiting at the Springfield Horse Show on Sept. 15 when the Eastern States Exposition celebrates governor's night. Mounts from the stables of Hugh Bancroft, Mrs. Sidney Winslow, Jr., and Miss Miriam Winslow, Mrs. William C. Cox, F. Harold Tolman, H. Hollen Crowell and others will be shown. Miss Jane Bancroft has entered her famous chestnut, Likely Lady, and her Frances Rex. Numerous dinners will be given in connection with this horse show.

Elizabeth Peabody House Benefit Is Planned for Nov. 4

MRS. ALEXANDER STEINERT of Beverly is chairman of a committee of prominent persons who are planning an unusual and novel entertainment to be given in Symphony Hall on November 4 for the Elizabeth Peabody House. Assisting her are Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. Guy Waring, Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, Mrs. Frank C. Brown, Mrs. Charles B. Blanchard, Mrs. Charles Ewing, Miss Edith P. Wolcott, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Nancy Patten, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lee, Jr., Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford, Mildred Hastings, Mrs. John T. J. Clunie, Mrs. H. Richardson Lane and Miss Jane Megrew.

MORE DEB DATES, INTERESTING to the 1930-31 group, are announced today. Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. De Normandie of Lincoln have set October 10 for the formal debut of their daughter, Miss Lilley De Normandie. The affair will be a dance to be given at the Weston Golf Club. The family is summering at Catauniet.

MISS THERESA BLAKE, daughter of Mrs. Robert Parkman Blake of Cambridge, is making her plans for entering Vassar College this fall. She is one of several debutantes who will fit their presentation dates into the holidays or occasional week-ends in Boston. Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Blake, was introduced last winter. Another college deb this season is Miss Mary Atkins, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Hornblower Atkins of Belmont, who has already had one party given for her earlier in the season. She will be a freshman at Vassar this year. Miss Alice Dodge will be a classmate.

LOCAL SOCIETY MATRONS who acted as hostesses at a recent bridge party given for charity at the fashionable Waumbeck Hotel in Jefferson, N. H., were Mrs. William Oakes, Mrs. Edwin C. Bray, Mrs. Malcolm B. French and Miss Ethel Drake. Other Bostonians who received awards for the most quaint costumes at a "thayzed dance" in the main ballroom were Mrs. Lillian Barstow and Mrs. Charles Detra. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. French are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Endicott, Clark Hodder, Stuart Osgood and Mrs. Lyman P. Gutterson.

North Shore Bridal Party at Fashionable Manchester Church Ceremony

Miss Josephine Sturgis Miss Laura Dupee

Miss Marianne Richardson Miss Barbara Backus

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD LEIGH GATES (Jane Powning) as they posed on the steps of Wyndhurst, the Powning home in Manchester, following their marriage in Emmanuel Church, Manchester, yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was attended by the fashionable world summering on the North Shore. The bride was attended by Miss Marianne Richardson of New York as maid of honor, and her bridesmaids were Miss Josephine Sturgis of Milton, Miss Barbara Backus of Manchester, Miss Pauline De Fries of Boston, Miss Laura Dupee of Manchester, and Miss Grace Livermore of Manchester. The couple will spend their honeymoon touring the principal European countries. (Staff photos).

Smart Frocks Now Look Like Coats

By ANN ARDEN

Model from L. P. Hollander Co., Inc.

THERE IS A TYPE of figure to which the coat dress is infinitely becoming. And women possessed of this well-built type of figure will be delighted to find that the dress made on the lines of a coat is excellent for the new season.

THE VERY prevalence of the variety may be misleading. The great majority of coat dresses may be taken for coats; both because of their numerousness in store windows and on the avenue, and because they do so closely resemble coats this season.

* * *

NEW SEASON wraps very often have flat fur trimmings. Coat frocks do likewise. And there is little to distinguish the skirt and sleeves of one from those of the other. The coat frock is ideal for early autumn; and fur-trimmed, goes blithely into fall.

* * *

WOOLEN FROCKS are decidedly important for fall, and they will be using bolero treatments more frequently than they do any other style features.

* * *

THE STREET costume pictured is of black wool crepe, its V neck and diagonal closing edged in black galyak fur, with narrow inner edge of white. The skirt has groups of inverted pleats back and front, while buttons accent the diagonal big closing. The bolero, which is part of the frock, is of a becoming length. The hat is a Thenault model of black velour, with an intriguing brim, sharply cut-away in back. The shallow crown is gathered at top center, and caught with group of white feathers, tipped in black, bearing an amusing resemblance to ermine tails.

* * *

GLOVES ARE emphasized in the Paris openings. They are often used to supply the note of color needed for an ensemble. Small appliques and unusual stitching harmonize with the details of the frock or suit to retain the perfection of ensembling that marks fall styles.

* * *

THE COLOR of the glove is important. The vogue for black and white has brought the white glove into prominence and the black glove is still good though it has lost a little of its popularity with the advent of browns for winter wear.

* * *

FOR AFTERNOON the longer glove, twelve-button length, is an excellent choice. Its color depends upon the ensemble, but off-white shades are very good. Dark gloves are smart accents for a colorful costume.

Plan Child Welfare Drive

By NANCY BREWSTER

Officials of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs and local club chairman have received the fall outline of Mothercraft and Child Welfare activity, sent out by the head of the department, Mrs. May Bliss Dickinson Kimball. The outline for mothers' child study groups and mothercraft extension organizations contains suggestions for the formation of such study groups for mothers and teachers.

The "kit" also contains an interesting extension course for child study groups as conducted by groups in other countries, among which are Labrador, India, China, Albania, Turkey and especially Mexico, the latter country having taken over the work with a seriousness comparable to the mothercraft activities of American clubwomen.

Mrs. Dickinson in her folder announces an excellent list of 50 books, assembled by her and which she says is available at mothercraft headquarters, 180 Commonwealth ave., Boston.

Australian Clubs Offer Comfort to Clubwomen Abroad

American clubwomen traveling abroad can find all the comforts of club life in the cities of Australia with the phenomenal growth of across-the-water clubs and the growing increase of clubhouse facilities.

Miss A. Viola Smith, former president of the American Woman's Club of Shanghai, and trade commissioner of the United States Department of Commerce stationed at Shanghai, tells of the efforts of women in other lands in establishing club life on a par with American club ideals and standards, in a recent article in Federation News, the official organ of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

REAL HOSPITALITY

In Australia, she says, from east to west, Sydney to Perth; from north to south, Brisbane to Melbourne and Adelaide, women's clubs are housed within suitable quarters "according to the individual taste and demands of the respective clubs."

In Melbourne, the Lyceum Club, though non-residential, maintains a well and comfortably equipped home including restaurant facilities, on the top floor of one of the prominent bank buildings, she points out. The Brisbane Woman's Club of Queensland, now over 20 years old, with a membership of 400, likewise has spacious yet simple clubrooms with tea service for its members, she continues.

WOMEN HAVE VISION

"Sydney, as in most things, stands apart in club achievement. The Women's Club of Sydney, the oldest one, is the only club in the Southern Hemisphere to finance and build its own club home. The vision and foresight of its members ranks high with the club achievements of American women. Of even greater interest is the fact that its first president was an American woman to whom it proudly pays tribute."

"Numerous other evidences are to be found throughout the Commonwealth," she says, still speaking of Australia's club activities, "of the facilities offered by the Housewives' League, the Country Women's Association, the Woman's Non-Party Association and many other organizations.

The American Weekly section of next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser shows a picture of a man who holds what is probably the record of saving lives. His name is Harry Miner, and he is chief of the Rockaway Beach, N. Y., life guards. A total of 1500 people owe their lives to his bravery and skill in rescuing them from drowning.

Pop, goes the cereal!

BREAKFAST is a lark when Rice Krispies come to the table. A cereal that actually pops and crackles in milk or cream. Toasted rice bubbles!

How delicious they taste. All the tempting goodness of crisp rice. Its nourishing elements in easy-to-digest form.

Add fresh fruits or honey and serve Rice Krispies for lunch. Ideal for children's early suppers. A different type of cereal.

Rice Krispies reach you ovenfresh in the waxtite inner-sealed wrapper. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HENRY MUELLER, macaroni king, back from Europe, reports business slump there, but hopes for adjustment of tariff trouble and business revival in U. S.

MUELLER SEES BUSINESS HOPE

New York, Sept. 3—Business conditions abroad are nothing to brag about. Germany is the hardest hit by business depression. There is less employment in France than in any other nation of Europe. These three observations summarized a two-month business survey abroad made by Henry Mueller, head of C. S. Mueller Company, world's largest manufacturers of spaghetti and macaroni. Mr. Mueller returned from Europe today on the Levinthan accompanied by Mrs. Mueller. His two daughters, Myrtle and Ruth, who left with him early in June, remained abroad.

"Spaghetti and macaroni are the mainstays of food in Europe today," said Mr. Mueller on his return, "and the people who eat the most spaghetti do not put on weight. It is not a weight increasing food as many people suppose."

He said the new United States tariff was the subject of considerable discussion abroad, but believed it would be adjusted to meet conditions.

"There is an undercurrent of anxiety in Europe," he said. "The people are wondering how and when they will be able to get out of their present difficulties. Nevertheless I found some sections of Europe that are not as badly hit by industrial and business depression as some sections of the United States. I took for a prequel return to normal after October."

Labor Candidate Loses Commons Race

Bromley, Eng., Sept. 3 (AP)—The regular Conservative candidate, E. T. Campbell, today won a by-election for a seat in the House of Commons made necessary by the recent death of the member, who also was a Conservative. The Labor candidate, A. E. Ashworth was far in the rear, trailing all others with 5942 votes.

After Nervous Breakdown

"I had a nervous breakdown and could not do the work I have to do around the house. Through one of your booklets I found how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped other women and I went to the drug store and got me six bottles. It has done me good in more ways than one and now I work every day without having to lie down. I will answer all letters with pleasure."—Hannah M. Eversmeyer, 707 N-16 Street, East St. Louis, Illinois.

Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. Lynn, Mass.

A man of Steele, first name Bruce, is now in the throes of his fourteenth divorce, which would seem to be the record for America, if not for the entire world. Read the story of this much married man in the American Weekly section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Marlboro Autoists Injured in Crash

Marlborough, Ct., Sept. 3 (AP)—Thre persons were injured, one probably fatally, here today in a collision of two automobiles. The most seriously injured was Bert C. Riley of Marlboro, Mass., whose right arm was nearly severed.

Others hurt were Miss Marion Hankard, Marlboro, and William Mulcahey of East Hartford. Robert Riley, driver of his father's machine, was arrested.

'Maiden-in-Distress' Brow Is Laid to Hat

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP)—Straight from the front line of New York's beauty row word came today that the old-fashioned plucked eyebrow has yielded to up-to-the-minute varieties known as the "Hollywood" and the "Maiden-in-Distress."

The "highbrow" hat was credited with responsibility for new emphasis on feminine brows in a message brought by Harry M. Spiro, president of the New York Ladies' Hairdressing Association, to cosmetologists in national convention here.

Vin Vincent at Rainbow Garden

Vin Vincent and his band, featured at Rainbow Gardens in Walpole on the state road to Providence, will introduce a series of new musical hits each night this week. A popular priced dinner is served each evening and the increasing patronage from Boston and Providence has been noticeable since all cover charges have been removed. Manager Victor Pini takes personal supervision over all food served.

Icebox Belt Sets Blaze in Convent

Fire caused by friction in a leather belt of the refrigerating plant caused damage of $5 today at St. Mark's convent, 1742 Dorchester ave., Dorchester. The blaze was quickly extinguished without alarm among the nuns stationed there.

Scoffers Who Haven't Seen These Values say:

"It Can't Be Done!"

Readers, Customers, Manufacturers, Competitors say "It can't be done" when they look at these $19 values and realize that many of them are being sold below usual cost to US!

But regardless of how many it or how many times it is said Summerfield's DOES SELL quality—right fashion—right merchandise at prices at SEEM impossible. You may well ask, "Why do you do it?" We answer that our policy of never being undersold obliges us to . . . that in these $19 sales (which we originated, and of which we are justly proud) we insist on offering only such items as will add to, not detract from, their fame.

If you wonder how it is possible to offer, for example, $65 vanities at $19 (far below usual cost) remember that we buy in trainloads, where divers buy in broken carloads,—that we get concession others cannot approach,—and that we prefer, if necessary, to sell items below cost (giving the customer the benefit) when it is a case of putting over a record month,—or tremendous selling event,—or underselling a competitor, because losses on individual items are but a drop in the bucket compared to our tremendous volume of business.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THE REBELLION OF YOUTH against threadbare Victorian principles gave John Drinkwater an intriguing theme for a blithetul comedy. And so, we are told, the author of "Abraham Lincoln" dashed off "Bird in Hand." We were impressed, even thrilled, with "Lincoln"; for "Bird in Hand," now current at the Majestic, we must thank Mr. Drinkwater for as cheerful an evening as we ever expect to spend in a theater.

* * *

THE WAYS OF YOUTH, it appears, are generally the same on one side of the sea as the other. Quaintly, Mr. Drinkwater has picked rural England for his field of observation, and except for details the results would have been the same in Keene, N. H. There was never a doubt from the beginning that Joan, the innkeeper's pretty daughter, would finally end the play by smuggling into Gerald's warm embrace. In the meantime, however, there must be ways and means, for an unyielding, and at times violent parent must be overcome. Fortunately, all this was accomplished by an exchange of many words between guests at the inn and their inflexible host. The latter made it clear that no daughter of his should marry out of her class—even for a baronetcy.

* * *

AS YOU MET ONE after another of Mr. Drinkwater's characters you found it easy to settle down for a pleasant evening among interesting people. It was sparkling comedy, keenly English to be sure, and perhaps for that more relishing. The social problems of the Englishman always seem to make good theater fare. Finely drawn characterizations gave "Bird in Hand" its most seductive charm. Roles were played by actors, of course, but there was something authentic about every one of them. The play was a jolly row from start to finish and it was made jollier by exactly the kind of acting you occasionally read about but seldom meet.

* * *

FROM THIS YOU MAY feel certain that the comedy fared well by reason of its personnel. It did. In this merry and altogether charming conflict of the classes, nothing could be finer than the portrayals of stiff and starchy Englishmen by Walter Edwin and Frank Petley; nor could you hope for more in a sardine salesman than Eliot Makeham presented with such excellent effect. As there always must be, and in this case a worthy demand for honorable mention, the list of excellent individual performance, should include Anita Kerry, Ronald Dare and John Warburton.

* * *

STRANGELY ENOUGH, in these days of dull comedies, "Bird in Hand" brings a real surprise. It is neither hilarious nor particularly smart, but it is rippling—or should I say ripping? And safe for your daughter or your best girl.

Film Who's Who

A business association that began a score of years ago was renewed recently when Owen Moore rejoined the forces of Carl Laemmle to play the leading male role in "Outside the Law," now showing at the New B. F. Keith's. For it was in 1910 that Moore, then a rising young stock actor, was placed under contract by Laemmle for the appearance in one of the pioneer organizations of the motion picture industry. Born in County Meath, Ireland, Owen lived on the "ould sod" until he was 11, when he together with his brothers, Tom and Matt, accompanied his parents, to the United States, settling in Toledo, Ohio.

HEARST FILM SHOWS RIOTS

Closeup scenes of wild rioting in Bombay, India, in which huge mobs of Ghandi's followers defy the army of police and British soldiers, are strikingly presented in the Hearst Metrotone News this week at Loew's State. How serious this prolonged uprising really is may be judged by the casualties which total 500 seriously injured, 50 of which proved fatal.

The German seaplane, Dornier Wahl, is shown landing in New York harbor after an eventful flight from Berlin by way of Iceland. Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, the plucky leader, introduces his three companions and states that he hopes the flight will help cement a friendly feeling between the German people and America.

R. K. O. BUYS FILM RIGHTS TO 'THE QUEEN'S HUSBAND'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
Copyright 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3—Pauline Frederick had all of the Los Angeles theater-goers praising her in "The Queen's Husband," a play by Noel Coward. There were hopes that one day Polly would bring to the screen the role she created on the stage. Then she got married and we didn't hear anything more about the play.

HENRY HOBART has closed for the film rights, thereby giving R. K. O. permission to make a talkie of this interesting if Ruritarian number. Lowell Sherman plays the role of the Prince who comes a-wooing of the Queen. He will also direct. I wonder who will play Pauline Frederick's part. If R. K. O. can get her it seems natural to believe Miss Frederick will play the part. If they cannot get her there is Olive Tell who would be excellent, Marjorie Rambeau, Seena Owen, Blanche Sweet, Hedda Hopper and scores of others. We charge no extra for casting the play for R. K. O. You're welcome.

THE BEST is none too good for Janet Gaynor these days at the Fox studio. Raoul Walsh, director de luxe and the man who has given Fox probably more box office successes than any other director with the exception of Frank Borzage, will direct Janet and Charles Farrell in "The Man Who Came Back." He has postponed "Women of All Nations" in order to accommodate the Fox powers that be and direct the Gaynor-Farrell picture. One hears so many stories about the way the difference of opinion between Janet and the Fox company was patched up. Many people are crediting Myron Selznick, manager of little Gaynor, with having coaxed her into a receptive frame of mind. Then there is a report that a close friend of Lydell Peck induced Janet to come back into the folds.

BOY WON ROLE IN IRISH FILM

Tommy Clifford, the 11-year-old boy from Dublin, Ireland, brought to this country to play the role of "Tad" in John McCormack's first talking screen picture, "Song O' My Heart," won his role, in reality, by a little bit of quick thinking.

Frank Borzage, who directed this Fox movietone, which comes to the Olympia and Uptown next Friday, has a habit of discovering new screen talent.

Arriving in Ireland, Borzage, the director; Tom Barry, the author of the story, and Joseph M. Kerrigan, who plays a featured role, went to a little school house, close by the McCormack estate in Monasterevan, where they made known their desires to find a boy to play a small role in the picture.

The teacher of the little school selected three boys as prospects and none of them was Tommy Clifford. This piqued the little lad, who, as the trio was being questioned, sneaked around in back of Borzage and kept repeating "Teacher's pet! Teacher's pets!" and he was so insistent and persistent in letting the picture folk know that the three were simply teacher's pets that Borzage immediately said: "You're the one we want."

ANOTHER CITY CONQUERED!
BY
HOWARD HUGHES' THRILLING AIR SPECTACLE
HELL'S ANGELS
Boston Joins Broadway and Hollywood in complete surrender to its sweeping magnificence
GLOBE
Thrilling beyond compare! Smashingly effective as to its aviation scenes and humanly appealing as to its theme—the love of two brothers * * * "Hell's Angels" is an achievement never before attained in the recording of airplane warfare. There is depth . . . beauty . . . virility in every scene.
POST
A masterly achievement! The greatest spectacle the screen has yet seen! Even the most jaded thrill seeker will be electrified by the three terrific high lights—the Zeppelin raid, the bombing of the German munitions factory and the free-for-all-dog fight, high in the clouds * * * Bound to be town talk for weeks to come.
AMERICAN
Left us gasping! A masterpiece in its sheer showing of the majesty and might of the camera * * * Has all the values of the motion picture art . . . action, play of lights and shades, tense incitement of interest through the imagination . . . direction is deft and effective.
TRAVELER
In magnitude, spectacle, drama, tragedy and thrills, "Hell's Angels" flying moments never have been equalled and, in our opinion, never will be * * * The bombing of the munitions factory is so realistic that one instinctively dodges as burning missiles hurl themselves at the camera's eye.
HERALD
So far the talking films have shown nothing comparable! * * * Should run many weeks on the strength of its marvelous aerial scenes . . . The Zeppelin raid on London * * * is the real climax. The sight of the great silver ships soaring its way through masses of fleecy clouds * * * is unforgetable.
TRANSCRIPT
It is the most spectacular sky saga yet filmed. It deserves a long stay at the Tremont. There are big thrills . . . sequences are so integrated with the plot that only by considering them in their proper place can their cumulative effect be felt.

HOT? PITY POOR FIGSKINNERS

Football Here
Seven Mules
Harvard-Yale

Great Backfields
Good Old Days
Ted's Big Toe

The frost isn't on the pumpkin yet or the fodder in the shock, but, nevertheless, here's King Football again, battering on the Sport's Door and demanding recognition. Boston College and Holy Cross sounded the call to football quarters yesterday. The gridiron candidates of Boston University and Brown report tomorrow. Next Saturday the Wah-Whoo-Wah warriors from up yonder in the blue hills of New Hampshire start whooping it up for dear old Dartmouth. Knute Rockne, Glenn Warner and Tad Jones last night talked to you over our own WNAC. Yes, football is with us again, even if it is hot enough to make your bloomin' eyebrows crawl, and there isn't a hint of football tang in the air and nary a leaf has started to turn.

Harvard, Yale and Princeton because of that funny presidents' agreement—"funny presidents" is right—don't don the moleskins for a considerable spell yet. But how about dear old Hawvard and the Elis? What is the football outlook out in Cambridge and down New Haven way?

Geo. Underwood

O-o-o-o-o-h, what backfields! O-o-o-o-oh, what a wealth of backs Arnold Horween and Mal Stevens have to pick from! Not since the long hair days has there been such a flock of star quarters, halves and fulls fluttering up the campuses—or, professor, should we have said "campi."

Here we start in talking about the backfields and ignoring the line. It is enough to make any decent, self-respecting guard or tackle sniff contemptuously and decide to stay off of us for life. But the unsung heroes, who make the holes for the other fellows to plunge through to fame and glory, should be used to it by this time. Football isn't the only thing, you know, in which the backs steal the smoke of the men up on the front line. Football and Life are much alike.

RIP'S RETORT

Did you ever hear of "Rip" Miller's retort?

If you remember your football you know there were two Millers on Notre Dame's great 1923-24 machine, "Don" in the backfield and "Rip" on the line.

"Rip" was introduced to a sweet, young thing one evening, who cooed:

"Oh, so you're Mr. Miller of Notre Dame. So glad to meet you. One of the Four Horsemen."

"No, not one of the Four Horsemen," corrected "Rip," without cracking a smile. "Just one of the Seven Mules."

Now that we've made our apologies to the linemen, let's look over those slashing backfields of Harvard and Yale.

Even with the Blue's great Albie Booth we would be inclined to give the Crimson the edge largely because of Barry Wood and his great football head. Whoever Mal Stevens puts at the tiller at Yale, be it Booth, McLennan, Sullivan or Austen, we doubt he runs off the plays with the strategy, resourcefulness and generalship with which Wood will handle his running mates.

What a wonderful backfield machine Barry will have to operate. Look it over:

"A" String	Position	"B" String
Wood	Q. B.	Gleason
Mayo	H. B.	Hogan
Devens	H. B.	Crickard
White	F. B.	Schereschewski

Kerch-o-o-o-o-o-o! Pardon us. Pronouncing Scherechewski may make you sneeze, too. Scherechewski is going to make a lot of fellows grunt this season, as well as sneeze. Wait and see.

But hasn't Harvard a pippin of a backfield layout?

ONLY HALF OF 'EM

Sh-h-h-h-h-h. That's only half of them. Horween only has to crook his finger and out from the sidelines will go Batchelder, Scott, Leonard or Francis Gilligan. Tommy Gilligan is ineligible. So are Wells and Ira Hardy, the two freshmen hopes, who failed to pass their academic tests. But Horween should worry about the ineligibles. He has such a wealth of backfield material that the "C" Stringers can't be distinguished from the regulars.

This season's Crimson backfield may make us forget some of the great combinations of the past. Dean, Corbett, Lake and B. Trafford. Daly, Dibbiee, Warren and Reid. Marshall, Kernan, Ristine and Graydon. Recall them? O'Flaherty, Corbett, Leslie, Minot, Logan, Brickley, Mahan, Bradlee. Dad remembers them if you don't. Watson, Boles, Mahan, King. Buell, Fitts, Chapin, Owen. But we're wandering down the vistas of the dim and distant past. Back to the present and Yale.

Look over the Blue backs. Just look over 'em:

"A"	Position	"B"
Booth	Q. B.	Sullivan
McLennan	H. B.	Parker
Dunn	H. B.	Austen
Crowley	F. B.	Taylor

Alternates — Church, Beane, Avery, Snead, Bachman, Muhlfeld, Uhlein, Conklin, Savage, Cruickshank and the Williamson brothers.

BATTLE OF 1909

No wonder Mal Stevens is wearing a grin these days that threatens to split his face. Yale is going to have a backfield which will bring memories of Adee, Thorne, Jerrems and Butterworth, and of Fincke, Sharpe, Chadwick, Hale. Even of Howe, Daly, Philbin and Coy.

It has been a long, long time since Harvard and Yale prepare to face each other with two so apparently even and stellar backfields. You'll have to wander back to 1909 to find them. Remember them?

Harvard 1909	Position	Yale 1909
O'Flaherty	Q. B.	Howe
Corbett	H. B.	Daly
Leslie	H. B.	Philbin
Minot	F. B.	Coy

Ted Coy! (A name to conjure with! A combination battering ram and Kipling's Inja rubber idjot on a spree. It was Ted's big toe that settled that famous Yale-Harvard duel of 1909.

Whose big toe is going to do it this year?

PURPLE GRID TEAM IN FIRST WORKOUT

Worcester, Sept. 3 — Holy Cross football candidates prepared for their first real practice session of the year here today. The squad, small in number in comparison with the group which will be out today, reported to Head Coach John J. McEwan yesterday, but the mentor, after giving the men a brief talk, announced that no workout would be held on account of the heat.

McEwan is the boss of the coaching group. He will have work with the linemen from tackle to tackle. Gus Cervini, former Holy Cross star athlete, will help work with the guards in particular. Bunny Corcoran, veteran football aide of the Crusaders, is in charge of the ends. George Pease, former great backfield man at Columbia and later a star pro football player, is backfield coach.

Today the squad will buckle down to preparing for the first game of the season, with St. Bonaventure, four weeks away.

A new man may be at center, Michael Favulli of Worcester. From the showing he made in spring practice, he satisfied McEwan that he would be considered along with Jim Farrell and Eddie Bergon.

PLEON YACHT CLUB OPENS RACE WEEK

The Pleon Yacht Club sailed its first regatta of race week at Marblehead yesterday. Small margins separated the leading three contenders in the Herreshoff S class.

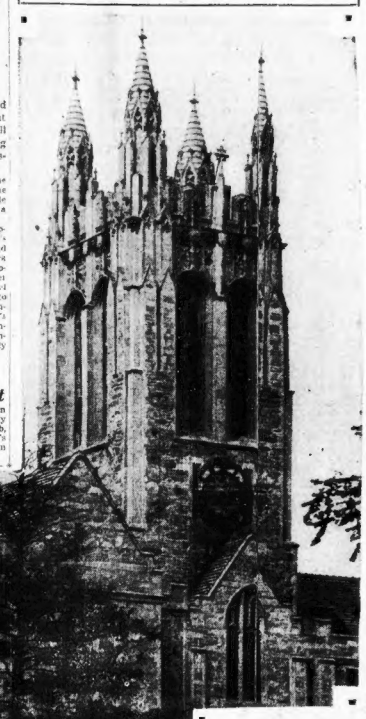
Twenty-four yachts crossed the starting line in five classes. The larger boats sailed a 7½ mile course and the fleet raced with a light, easterly breeze.

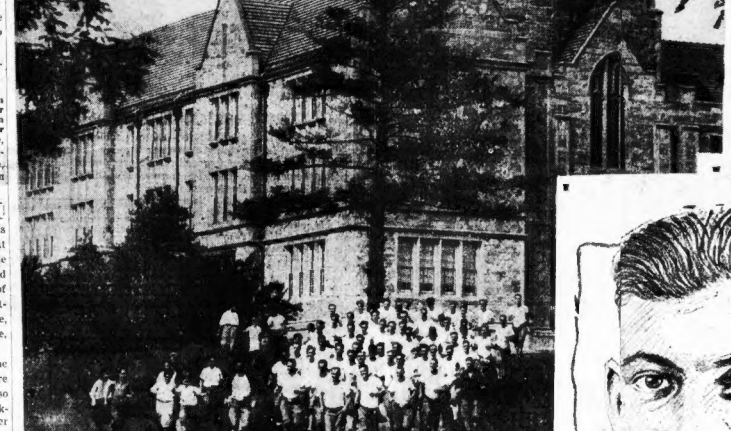
The S class bowed to George Upton's Sandsut and E. D. Chapple's Dolphin at the start, only to find themselves led at the weather mark by Bill Rothwell, sailing the Rowena, who split with the fleet after footing out of the harbor and stood deep into the southward to pick up a second lead at the turning point. Mrs. P. E. Gardner's Widgeon and King Upton's Sandust overhauled the leader to finish second and third respectively by one second each.

Knowlton Wins in Club Tournament

M. L. Knowlton once again won the class A gross in the weekly tournament of the University Club, held at Woodland, Knowlton's home course, yesterday afternoon with a 79.

EAGLES START FLIGHT





WITH THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING lending a beautiful background, Boston College's first day squad of 61 raced down over the hill from the locker room to Alumni Field to start football practice for the season of 1930. Coach Joe McKenney, Capt. John Dixon and many faces familiar to B. C. followers may be discerned in the vanguard. McKenney has a stiff program of 10 games but he has a large, husky squad with many veterans and has high hopes of a successful season. McKenney, known as the "miracle coach" because he developed a championship team in his first year, is pictured in the lead.

Deny Rumor McGraw to Quit Giants

New York, Sept. 3 (AP)—Perennial rumors of the impending resignation of John J. McGraw as manager of the New York Giants, revived by his absence from the club's latest trip, today brought an emphatic denial from Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York National League club.

Published reports today suggested the "Little Napoleon" would leave the Giants at the end of the season to manage another club, and that Dave Bancroft might succeed him.

"Not a word of truth in it," said Stoneham. "Mr. McGraw is not only manager of the Giants, he is a stockholder and vice-president of the club.

"Under baseball law, even if he resigned as manager he could not sign with another club until he disposed of his stock in the Giants. If he wished to sell his holdings certainly he would offer them to me. He has never even suggested such an idea.

"Because he has been detained at home on personal business which is not of public interest or concern, while the team was away, some people seem to have decided that he is about to quit us. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

"If the team loses a few games while he is away that is not McGraw's fault. He is in constant touch with the players and may be said to be managing the club every day, even if he is not on the bench."

Boston Yachtsman First in Maine Race

Northeast Harbor, Me., Sept. 3 — Francis Welch of Boston, sailing the QT, trailed David Rowe's No. 14 for half the distance of the 12-mile sail for Class R yachts here before jumping into the lead which he maintained throughout the rest of the sail.

Hair is an asset worth keeping

A GOOD head of hair is indeed an asset worth keeping. It is proof that its owner has sufficient pride in his own personal appearance to care for his hair as he cares for any other part of his physical make-up. Unfortunately he cannot select his hair, as he selects his other valuable assets, but he can select a competent, honest hair and scalp specialist to help him retain the hair he has, or regrow that which he has lost. If he is a wise man he will select The Thomas' for this purpose.

You should select the Thomas' to end your dandruff, stop your falling hair, or regrow your hair, because they have been overcoming these scalp troubles for over 15 years.

HUB TWI TEAMS TILT FOR TITLE

The Hub Twi League Little Worlds Series opener between Newton Upper Falls and Hopedales of Allston, winners of the halves in the race this season, will be played at 5:30 o'clock tomorrow evening to the Allston team's home grounds at the North Brighton playground.

Newton feared it would be weak on the hill as McLaughlin, one of its staff, left the team. To assure the fans of good hurling the league allowed Newton to select one of four pitchers, Corrigan of Hyde Park, Weiners of South Boston, or either McDonough or Dave Walsh of Revere.

Hockey Star Hits Golf Ball 6000 Ft.

Jasper Park, Alberta, Sept. 3 —From the ice cornice on the top of Mount Edith Cavell, 11,033 feet high, Leo Bourgault, defence man of the New York Rangers hockey team, today made what is believed to be the longest drive in golfing history.

He estimates that the ball, falling 5000 feet to the Ghost Glacier in the valley below, bounced at least 1000 feet outward off the rocky ledges of the mountain, a total flight of 6000 feet.

Red Grange Signs With Chicago Bears

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP)—"Red" Grange will have another fling at professional football.

The famous redhead of the gridiron, who has failed to get very familiar with the uprights on the professional field, signed up today for another season with the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football League.

Grange has been training in California, and says he is in the best shape since he left Illinois.

Jackson Stops Lawless

Los Angeles, Sept 3 (AP)—Sammy Jackson, young Santa Monica negro middleweight, scored a 10-round technical knockout over Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., here tonight.

Eagle Grid Squad Grows; Veterans Ready to Start

By JOHN GILLOOLY

Joe McKenney's flock of Eagles may reach the total of 100 members when the late-comers and stragglers add their names to the roster of Boston College football candidates today.

Some of the gridders find it hard to tear themselves away from the Cape and mountains where they have been enjoying the summer to return to the rugged program of two grid practice workouts a day.

A number of looked-for faces were missing when the first batch reported, but McKenney states that he has heard from all his veterans and they'll be on hand.

Joe Kelley, the hard-hitting fullback of a year ago; John Marr, Hank Plausse, George Colbert and Chesley Antos were among the notables missing as B. C. made its 130 grid debut.

Kelley, according to his brother, Jack, himself an ex-B. C. grid star, won't be down from Jackson, N. H., for a week. But Jack reports that his kid brother now tips 178 pounds and is in the best condition of his career after working on the Kelley farm all summer.

Antos is tied up with life-saving work and Colbert is still playing baseball. But all will be on hand, and in good condition, when the big work starts.

A new B. C. record was set up the first day when 61 uniforms were given out in the course of 20 minutes. The hand of John Curley and Manager Arthur Norton was noticed. McKenney was able to get all the preliminaries over within one day, whereas the distribution of uniforms consumed an entire day in former grid openings at B. C.

McKenney announces that there will be no cut in the B. C. squad until the day before Thanksgiving. Joe departs from usual collegiate football routine by this method. Most every college coach swings the guillotine early.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

The fifth annual left hand golf championship of New England play opened this morning with an 18-hole qualifying round at the Wollaston Golf Club. Unlike the past tilts, there is a good field battling for the sixteen qualifying berths and Grif Fallon, the defending champion, has a fight on his hands.

Grif Fallon played a practice round yesterday and he should have saved the 14th hole for today. After a drive to the top of the hill going to the 14th, Grif holed out a niblick shot for an eagle deuce.

The Boston Newspapermen's Golf Association is at the Bellevue Golf Club today. The scribes have not been in action for more than a fortnight and therefore a large gathering is expected to report at the Melrose links.

It is just too bad for Bill Donnelly, Jr., and Freddie Thayer that Fred Wright is not the owner of a movie camera and a projector. This trio will play off their tie of the annual Sandy Burr open on Sunday and the winner will be awarded the above-mentioned trophy.

Bill Donnelly, Jr., Woodland, a former junior champion, is back on his game after a long slump. Until last week, Donnelly struggled to get into the late 70's but he was close to par at Wollaston during the Hearst junior championship and then stepped around Sandy Burr in 73 to tie Fred Wright, Jr., and Fred Thayer for low gross.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

Hodapp, Indians—Made three hits against Brown and drove home winning run with single in 11th inning.

Terry, Giants—Drove in seven runs with home run, double and two singles, against Phillies.

Root, Cubs—Held Reds to three hits and beat them, 8-2.

Brandt, Braves—Stopped Robins with four singles and won easily, 6-0.

B. U. Grid Squad in First Practice Session Tomorrow

MAHANEY IN 1ST YEAR AS HEAD COACH

Facing the tough assignment of lifting Boston University from football obscurity, Hilary Mahaney, former all-American end at Holy Cross, starts his first year as head coach, tomorrow, when a selected group take part in the Terriers' initial practice session at Nickerson Field, Weston.

Letters were sent to 30 men asking them to report for two weeks of intensive drill before college opens. It is expected, however, that there will only be about 15 on hand as many have received permission to report late in order to finish their summer work.

With this handful of men, Mahaney will try to develop, in a little over three weeks, a team that will be capable of giving West Point a battle.

As his assistant, Mahaney will have Al "Special Delivery" Marsters, another All-American star. Marsters has shown the world that as a back he had few, if any superiors.

The following have been invited:

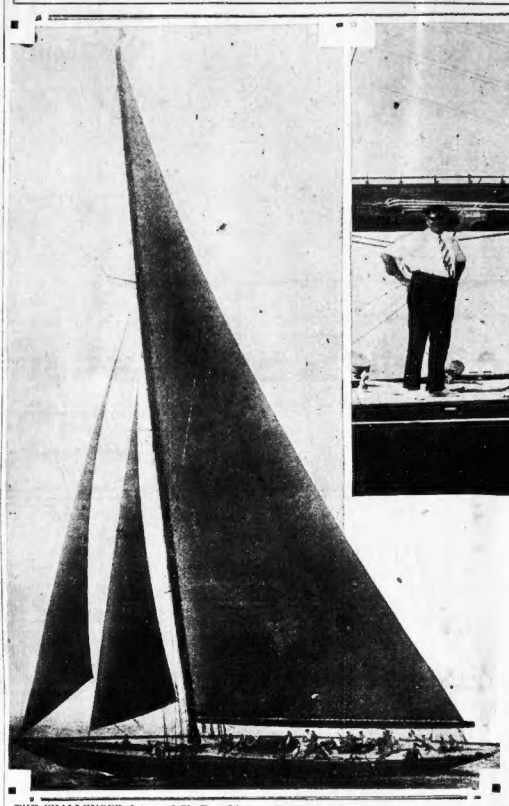
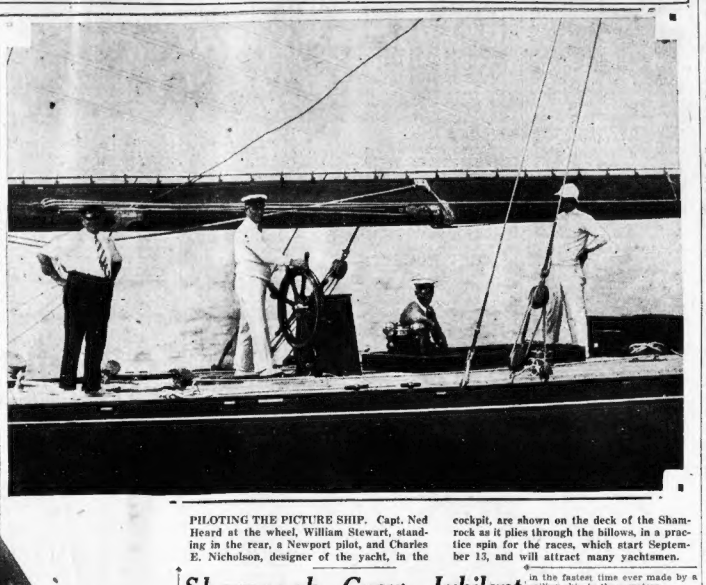
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

LIPTON'S SHAMROCK SLIPS MERRILY ALONG UNDER FULL SAIL



THE CHALLENGER, latest of Sir Tom Lipton's yachts to invade American waters after the America Cup, is shown swaying through the blue of Narranganset Bay on a trial spin. The Shamrock is a real picture boat and one of the most beautiful of Lipton's yachts.



PILOTING THE PICTURE SHIP. Capt. Ned Heard at the wheel, William Stewart, standing in the rear, a Newport pilot, and Charles E. Nicholson, designer of the yacht, in the cockpit, are shown on the deck of the Shamrock as it plies through the billows, in a practice spin for the races, which start September 13, and will attract many yachtsmen.

Shamrock Crew Jubilant After Record Tune-Up

Newport, R. I., Sept. 3 (INS)—There is something approaching hilarious jubilation aboard Shamrock V today as she stretches her great white wings for a second tuneup over one of the courses on which she will meet Harold S. Vanderbilt's Enterprise in four out of seven races for the America's Cup.

The jubilation is justified because last evening, whirled along unde. the pressure of a southwest breeze that freshened constantly, she reeled off ten miles on what is said to be record time.

Shamrock went off by herself and galloped along the Narragansett shore, five miles to windward and return. This is five miles shorter than the first leg will be in the initial struggle for the America's Cup. That race will be 15 miles to windward and return.

It was not until after she returned that hard-shelled Newporters brought back the information that she had covered 30 nautical miles in the fastest time ever made by a sailing ship in these waters.

RUNYON SAYS

By Damon Runyon

New York, Sept. 3 (US)—If they had a nice yachting race course on the Erie Canal, your faithful servant wouldn't mind experting the race for the America's cup. Not at all. By no means.

But the fact that they are to hold this race off Newport, right in the lap of old Mammy Ocean, lends an ominous—yea, a sinister—ring to the command that comes booming to my ears from the poop deck of the good ship, Universal Service, where Capt. Hank Stansbury is striding up and down with his weather eye to the lee'ard.

"Lay aft, thar" roars Cap'n Hank. "Ahoy! Belay! Stand by to cover the big aquatic heat, Runyon, or dash my tarry toplights, I'll keelhaul ye!"

I am free to admit a sailor's life is n' the life for me. I mean that deep sea stuff. I have no objection to standing the dog watch at 49th and Broadway, even in the roughest weather, or to lolling in the stern sheets of a life boat on the lagoon in Central Park.

But off Newport, with the Atlantic Ocean around and about—that's a different cat hop entirely. I know that off Newport the jolly little waves are ever doing a sort of muscle dance which joggles up the esophagus no little. I shudder at the prospect.

However, duty is duty. I will be present at the becalming when the becalming gets good. In fact, I have already started a bit of light training for the event. Some of my friends will be relieved to learn the explanation of my recent humming as I stroll along the big gangplank.

MR. BOSTON
By JACK CONWAY

Father Bill Cuddy, who stages the amateur boxing shows for the St. Joseph's T. A. Society, called Mr. Boston on the telephone.

"Just wanted to tip you that the St. Joe's will be back shooting with red hot amateur boxing shows at Mechanics Building a week from Saturday night," asserted Father Bill.

"What are the classes?" demanded Mr. Boston.

"They'll be scraps at 118, 126, 135, 147 and at 160 pounds, also in the light heavyweight class. All classes will be open.

"Last season we had so many entries in the various classes at our Saturday night shows that we had to restrict the number of battlers who would be permitted to breeze into action. I look for even more competition this season. Of course we'll offer an international show at the Garden later in the season. I have practically signed a Norwegian team to show here. Boston, as usual, will get the best in amateur boxing."

Mello's Trouble With Arms Is Improved

Mr. Boston met Bobby Goldman, manager of Al Mello, in Newspaper Row.

"When will Al Mello get back into action?" asked Mr. Boston.

"I expect Mello to be ready for action again by November," chirped Goldman. "He was operated upon early in the summer at the Mayo Brothers' Clinic. Al's trouble was with his arms. They would tire after three of four rounds. The trouble was with the muscles of his arms.

"I would like to match Mello with Johnny Indrisano or Young Jack Thompson after he has had a couple of tune-up contests."

Wollaston Golf Club Gave Full Co-operation

Bill Grimes was still talking about the Hearst Junior Golf Championship when he hailed Mr. Boston today.

"If the tournament continues to grow in popularity," said Bill, "we shall require two days for our qualifying round next year.

"The Wollaston Golf Club is entitled to a great deal of credit for the assistance it gave us in running off the tournament.

"I wish you would make special mention of Richard H. Freeman, president; William J. Fallon, vice-president; Herbert E. Curtis, treasurer; Charles A. Gilman, secretary, and Directors Joseph P. Manning, John L. Black, George F. Eddy, John J. Gallagher and Dr. Fred E. Jones.

"Also, don't overlook R. N. Hall, A. C. Hastings, Jr., C. H. Todd, G. W. Berry, A. H. Pierce, J. E. LaRocca, C. A. Crowley and George W. Britt.

"Arthur Kiley, club manager; Jock Gray, pro; Dan McNeise, assistant pro; Bill Nolan, caddy master, and everybody else in Who's Who at Wollaston just rolled up their sleeves and pitched in to make the tourney a success.

"Everybody was made to feel at home at Wollaston."

LEGION "PURE" SHOW TONIGHT

The Brighton-Allston Post, American Legion, will put on an amateur boxing tourney tonight at Rogers Park, Brighton. This show is the second one of its kind conducted by the Legion.

Entries in the 126-pound class include those of Steve Salik, Lowell; Pat McStay, Newton; Romeo Paris, Fitchburg; Frank Moran, Lowell; Al Vitale, Boston; Ralph Morgan, Roxbury, and Ed McLellan, Quincy.

The light-heavyweights battling are Henry Surrette, Leominster; Russell Moore, Roxbury; Euclide Fleurette, Woonsocket; Bob Wright, Quincy.

The SIGNPOST of SAVINGS

This slogan of savings which has been consistently appearing in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser tells the story of the values to be found today in good used cars. The automobile dealers of Greater Boston in accord with good business and the down-trend of prices have made substantial price adjustments on all of their good used cars. They have passed on the order to "clear the show rooms"—the result can be seen in the prices on good used cars listed today in the Classified section. Turn to it and profit by these unusual offers.

Hunt Defeats Schaaf in Dull Bout as Crowd Boos

15,000 FANS DISGUSTED WITH GO

By JACK CONWAY

Babe Hunt, Oklahoma heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Ernie Schaaf of Wrentham after 10 dreary rounds of boxing at an Argonne A. A. show at Fenway Park.

As a thrill maker, the tussle was a flop. It didn't furnish as much action as one can get out of a toy pistol and a box of caps.

Jack Conway

The 15,000 fans who paid $25,000 to see the heavyweight contest were keenly disappointed. They booed the dismal efforts of the big fellows to put over effective punches from the second round until the contest ended.

The boos were loudest when the final gong sounded and the decision went to Hunt. I don't think the fans particularly cared who got the verdict, but they felt they should make one final protest before the rival warriors left the ring.

I didn't feel that Hunt had shown anything that entitled him to the decision. It could have been given to Schaaf with probably more justification as he did the forcing in most of the rounds. If draws were permitted in this state, the bout might have been called even.

Schaaf Stumbled Forward and Missed Punches

Schaaf stumbled forward, missed punches by wide margins when he attempted to score with his right and failed to land many effective blows in the clinches.

Hunt lacked all the dash and fire he displayed as he knocked out Paul Fantaleo and licked Jimmy Braddock. He fell backward as Schaaf tumbled forward and didn't get much power behind his punches.

Hunt's best sock is a left hook which he lands to either the head or body with equal effect. This is a good wallop when Hunt is going forward, but it didn't damage Schaaf as the Oklahoma heavyweight seldom carried through with his punch.

The fans didn't make known their disapproval of the bout in the first round. They felt the heavyweights were merely feeling each other out and would get warmed up later on.

But when the second session was as dull as the first, the crowd started to boo the boxers. The booing continued from then until the end of the contest with only slight interruptions

Referee Martin Warned Boxers in Fourth

In the fourth session, Referee Johnny Martin warned the big fellows. He told them to abandon their sluggish style of milling and to open up and fight.

This caused Schaaf to cut loose with a right which crashed to Hunt's jaw.

Schaaf forced the milling in most of the rounds, but he didn't land many effective blows. He was particularly weak with his right hand attack. Most of his right hand wallops went wild and called forth boos from the crowd.

Even the presence of the lady ushers, dolled out in blue smocks and wearing boy red caps, failed to stop the vocal criticism of the crowd.

Nichols Beats Allen in Hard Bout

George Nichols of Buffalo won from Harry Allen of Brockton, after 10 rounds of hard grueling battling. On several occasions it looked as if Nichols was going to tip Allen over with right handers to the chin, but Harry always rallied and came back fighting.

"You're game as a pebble, Nichols told Allen, when the bout ended.

"Thanks a lot," chirped Harry, as he mitted his rival.

Little Jack Dempsey of the North End lost a decision to Pete Herman of Roxbury after six rounds of torrid milling. These midgets let punches fly all through the bout. Neither took a backward step. To find this contest could not have been called a draw.

Leslie Baker of Watertown walloped out a six-round win over Frankie Stevens of Boston. It was the most severe test Baker has received since he quit the amateurs and he stood up well.

Albion Holden of North Attleboro disposed of Vincent Trescott of Cambridge in six heats.

Joe Vanuil of Boston kayoed Jack Thompson of Portland in 4 round.

Any one of the preliminary bouts furnished more action than the feature event.

I picked Schaaf to win, but if he had got the duke I would not have cared to tell anybody "I told you so."

It was the kind of dreary fight one does not care to talk much about.

George Lyons at 72 Wins Golf Title

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 3 (AP)—The weight of his 72 years fails lightly upon the shoulders of George S. Lyon, Canada's "grand old man" of golf.

The Lambton veteran, eight times Canadian amateur champion, during the period from 1906 to 1914, won the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association championship with a 36-hole total of 153 yesterday.

TWO VETERANS ON MALDEN GRID SQUAD

Capt. Ray Terry, center, and Johnny Kelly, fullback, were the sole members of last year's great Malden high football team who reported to Coach Ed Goodreau for the initial Malden high school football practice of the season at the Pearl st. field.

Al Kerwin, a fine all around performer at Lincoln junior high last season, will make a strong bid for a place on the Blue and Gold team this year.

Fed Kitchings, a guard, is another youngster who stands a good chance of winning a regular berth on the eleven

Spit is a horrid word, but it's worse if on the end of your cigar

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

Over 7,500 cigar factories are registered by the U. S. Government. Over 7,400 of these hand-roll cigars, producing 50 percent of the output. Every hand-rolled cigar—made by American Cigar Co. or anyone else—is subject to the possible danger of "spit-tipping." Certified Cremo is absolutely free from spit-tipping—No Cremo is made by hand.

The choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords are scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. Certified Cremo's purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that bind, roll, wrap and tip the cigars!

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Are you a bridge enthusiast? If so, you will be interested in the latest stunt thought up for those who take their game seriously.

The United States line is arranging for a cruise early in January on the Republic, to the West Indies for 16 days. There will be an exclusive party of some 300 card enthusiasts, under the personal direction of "none other than" Wilbur C. Whitehead, internationally famous as a bridge authority.

The tentative program arranged by Mr. Whitehead includes five major contract events to be contested in duplicate play. One event is open only to the ladies.

During the cruise Mr. Whitehead and many other leading authorities will be available for informal discussion. This is the first time that a cruise of this type has ever been attempted and steamship circles are keenly watching developments.

MAKES RECORD

The Blue Funnel twin-screw steamer Antenor of 7900 tons gross recently made a new record for a run from New York to Manila. Sailing via Suez Canal, the ship made the run in 34 days and 11 hours. The best previous mark was 36 days.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of "Today's Who's Who in Boston Harbor" is Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association and newly appointed member of the Boston Port Authority.

Frank Davis

Frank has the widest acquaintance of shipping and traffic men of any person in New England. He is also known all over the country, due to his post boosting activities and also to his office as vice-president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

Davis began his career as office boy with the Boston & Maine Railroad, later becoming one of its general agents. He has a thorough knowledge of railroad matters as well as maritime affairs.

The maritime officer has a distinguished record of service to the harbor. He is credited with many achievements, such as being largely instrumental in having Cape Cod Canal transferred to the U. S. government, in having the American Republics line brought to Boston, the deepening of Broad Sound to 40 feet and many others.

Davis recently published a book on Boston harbor which has been sent all over the world, telling of the advantages of this port.

RADIO TRAVELOGUES

Four days of radio programs on how and where to travel by water will be given by Miss Alyce Seimens of the Boston Evening American Travel Bureau, over Station WBZ at 12:10 p. m. Her first subject is the "Story of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick," as seen from Furness liners traveling from Boston to St. Johns. This talk is scheduled for Wednesday.

The talk for Thursday is entitled "Do's and Don'ts for the Ocean Traveler." This is an explanation of customs regulations and etiquette, and features service on the Cunard liners which make Boston sailings.

On Friday, Miss Seimens will tell of "Ireland, Land of Singing Hearts and Smiling Eyes" by way of the Cunard and Anchor lines. On Saturday noon, she will tell of Shakespeare's country and how to get there, via the United States lines. The Friday and Saturday talks are the beginning of a "world tour" by radio.

BOSTONIANS AFLOAT

Sailing from New York on the French line steamer Paris were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Macomber of Boston.

On the White Star liner Homeric, due in New York today from southampton and Cherbourg with a total of 1,570 passengers, are

Mr and Mrs. I. M. Atherton Mr and Mrs. Winthrop Atwood, Miss Agnes C. Poole and F. E. Hunters, all of Boston.

CITY OWNERSHIP

Julius Klein, assistant secretary of U. S. Commerce, has made a shipping report to the President. Klein says that the shipping board and the Merchant Fleet Corporation are now operating 17 lines, as compared to 96 of previous date. Steps are in progress with a view to consolidation and disposal of some of these 17 lines, and Mr. Klein expressed a hope that in a very few years the government will be free of ship operation."

This would also mean that the shipping board would give up its operation of terminals such as the local Army Base Terminal. It is interesting to note that a movement is developing, looking toward the possible city ownership of this local terminal which is now under investigation at the order of Mayor Curley.

Servant Gives Cathie a Look of Curiosity

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, marries her wealthy, elderly employer, Alfred Farnsworth. It seemed the only way out of her financial difficulties.

"Is there anyone else, anyone you love?" he asked her before the wedding, and Cathie said no. It was true. She could hardly count Gordon Moore, a man who forgot all about her.

Cathie's marriage begins auspiciously with a general settlement for her impecunious family and a gorgeous trousseau for her. But after her wedding trip she is struck with the gloomy, almost sinister quality of Farnsworth's house.

CHAPTER 12

MR. FARNSWORTH was glad to be home again. After all, there's no place like home," he said, sinking into the big arm chair in front of the fire after he had had his tea.

Cathie smiled rather wanly. She wondered if she would ever come to think of this as home. It seemed so big, so full of dark corners, and it was so oppressively quiet. Her own voice sounded strange and loud, when she said, "Yes, isn't it?"

To cover her confusion she got up and moved around the room, examining a Sevres vase, a Dresden bon-bon box, a file of magazines in red morocco covers. She felt like a fish out of water.

"It must be a very large house," she said, just to be saying something.

"Oh, yes. Twelve rooms. Not counting the servants' quarters."

"I wonder if I'll be able to manage it," she said doubtfully. "You entertain a lot, don't you?"

"What's that?" Mr. Farnsworth sat up sharply. The warmth of the fire, after the long drive, was making him nod.

Hostess Role

"I was just wondering if I'd be able to take care of it all for you. I'm not used to a big house and entertaining, you know. I'm afraid I'll be very stupid."

"Nonsense, my dear. Cheong takes full charge. I don't entertain much."

"Oh!"

After another pause, in which her husband was visibly fighting to keep his eyes open, Cathie said

"Where's Cheong?"

"Cheong? Oh, he's the boss Chinaman. He has been with me for years. Takes care of everything. Ring the bell, will you, Cathie? I'd better introduce him."

"Tell Cheong I want to see him here," he told the young Chinese boy who answered the ring.

"He cook dinner now. I call him."

In a moment Cathie heard the shuffling of slippers on the waxed floor. A very fat, very old Chinaman, in a long white apron, stood bowing in the doorway.

"This is Mrs. Farnsworth, the new mistress of the house," Farnsworth said, presenting [illegible]

The old Chinaman bowed again with [illegible], really looking at her, but Cathie had the old sensation that he would have described her minutely from the top of her head to the soles of her feet; that he had already satisfied his curiosity about her.

"I am your obedient servant," he said in perfect, ceremonious English.

"Now that's settled," Farnsworth said. "If you want anything all you have to do is to see Cheong. He manages everything. Sit down for a few minutes and rest, child. Then I'll show you the house."

Cathie sat in a chair, turning the leaves of a magazine.

Mr. Farnsworth dozed in his

From time to time he caught his breath in a sort of gasping snore. Cathie wiped her eyes stealthily. She thought, "I'm tired, that's what's the matter with me. If I could get a bath and get dressed I'd be all right."

She looked around the room for the bell, but didn't see it. An agony of shyness came over her. She COULDN'T get used to this! she'd NEVER be able to feel that she belonged. . . .

A clock in the hall struck 5. This was perfect nonsense. Once she'd had a bath and unpacked she'd be all right . . .

She got up and wandered out into the hall. Doors were open, disclosing vistas of other large, dim rooms. Feeling like an overbold guest, she began to ascend the beautiful winding stairway that led to the second floor. Nothing to stop her from going up . . . It was going to be her home, wasn't it?

Another large, square hall upstairs. More doors, some of them

Tip on Tear Gas 'Attack' Wins $25

Makes Dying Child Happy

BOSTON MAN GETS FIRST AWARD

Story in Film Explosion and Fire in Wakefield Merits $15

The ability to sense the news value in various events, coupled with speed in flashing the news to this office, once more proved the deciding factor in the Boston Evening American's News Tip Contest.

In the week just ended, first award goes to Bernard Berry of 157 Summer st., Boston, who rushed the first word to this newspaper of the explosion of tear gas bombs during a demonstration in the former Old Colony Bank building at 161 Summer st., on last Thursday.

The incident involved the safety of many persons in the building and was phoned into this office late in the afternoon, just in time to catch the last edition. A real "beat," and the big factor was Speed! For his alertness Bernard gets the first award of $25.

TIP ON EXPLOSION

The second award of $15 goes to John Sarreseu, of 14 Bancroft rd., Wakefield, who, on the same day, was the first to give the news of the explosion of films and the fire in a photographic studio at Main and Albion sts., Wakefield

One woman was overcome and a fireman seriously injured in this blaze. This tip came in during the afternoon and the story was good enough to make the front page.

The name of the winner of the third award is withheld, but his story certainly deserved the prize of $10. The tip came in about one-half hour before the Peach edition went to press. Rapid-fire investigation by the news tip editor uncovered a dramatic story, of first page calibre, and best of all, a story which was ready in time for the edition.

This was the story of the chase of a rum-runner around Newport harbor by the U. S. coast guard among the cup yachts and its final capture after one man had been shot. This was on Tuesday, August 26.

SPEED WON OUT

As can be seen every one of the major winners showed speed in getting their stories to the city desk of the Boston Evening American. Speed is the watchword. This has been proven over and over again since the contest started.

Many people are disappointed to call and learn that someone already has phoned in the information. Time is the big element, however, and it must be remembered "first come, first served." All tips must be investigated, and for this reason time is an important factor. Speed on the part of the tipster facilitates the work of the news tip editor.

Hundreds of tips come into this newspaper every week and for the best of them the Boston Evening American pays awards totalling $100.

If you see anything happen, hear of anything that has happened or know that something is going to happen, give your information to the Boston Evening American—and don't delay. Do it immediately. It may mean real money to you.

If you are near the office, bring it in. But the telephone is often quicker. Use the phone—the number is Liberty 4000. Ask for the news tip editor. You may get in on the $100.

Generous Response Is Made to Appeal for Roxbury's "Little Soldier"

"I haven't so much myself, but will give you this . . ."

"Will you kindly give to Mrs. Green for us . . ."

"Please see that this gets to the mother of poor little Eleanor Green . . ."

All day today the letters to the Boston Evening American ran this way, and gifts to the family of Roxbury's "Little Soldier," whom Fate has deemed must die, poured in.

Milk—which she needs. This article was ordered delivered daily to her home

Orange juice—which she also needs. It was ordered delivered to patient little Eleanor, who is only five and does not yet really realize that the thumb of destiny has been turned down against her

SLIGHTEST CHANCE

"Anonymous." "A Friend."—"Please send me the address of the Mother." The letters were in one or the other trend.

And from the persons who wished to keep their names secret and deal themselves with the tragic situation, other aid came to Mrs. Lillian Green, the courageous mother of four who has smothered her pride that the youngest of her flock might have every chance in life.

Yet the chance is only the slightest

Five dollars, two dollars, fifteen dollars, one dollar. They came in from "The Quarterdeck" at Watch Hill, R. I., from persons who really cannot afford it; from women whose hearts have gone out to little Eleanor, and from men who wish they had daughters of their own.

Eleanor Green, at five, may not have long to live but she will have the prayers of a host in Heaven—a host that still struggle on Earth.

CASH DONATIONS

The list of cash donations, sent in so far for distribution through the Boston Evening American, whose aid was first asked, reads:

BOSTON PORT AUTHORITY WILL HEAR REPORTS

Meeting Tomorrow to Take Up Investigation That Curley Ordered

Charges of mismanagement at the Army Base Terminal will be probed tomorrow when the full board of the Boston Port Authority meets on the investigation order of Mayor Curley.

According to the announcement by Richard Parkhurst, secretary, he will receive reports of preliminary investigations made by board members when the committee meets

The secretary also said criticism of harbor reviews is to be sought so that rubbish and debris can be cleaned up

At present the U. S. steamship inspectors the U. S. engineers, the harbor master of the police department, the state fire marshall, the collector of the port, and the U. S. Coast and Geodetic survey all have different functions

The secretary reported improvements have been made at Myrtle Docks. Modern elevators have been installed, so that trucks may load directly

Announcement was made that all steamship interests which wish to learn of entering vessels as they pass Deer Island, hereafter will be given a telephone call after the ship leaves quarantine

ALLEN STUDIES AUTO RATES

Gov. Allen, having announced that he favors the demerit or risk system for fixing compulsory auto insurance rates, conferred again today with State Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown over the tentative schedule prepared by Mr. Brown for 1931, which embodies a general increase of 6 per cent.

The Governor announced that he would ask the next Legislature to incorporate his plan into the law. Under it the burden of high rates would be placed on those responsible for past accidents

Announcement by the Governor of this plan followed a conference with Commissioner Brown yesterday.

4 Held to Grand Jury as Holdup Plotters

Four men arrested when police received an advance "tip" on a holdup planned to take place on Portland st., West End, were arraigned before Judge Good in municipal court today and held in $10,000 each for the grand jury They are Joseph Malotiollo, Marco Liotonna, Jeremiah Santoro and Spedito Nicoletta, all charged with conspiracy to rob the George R Wetherill Co., Inc., paint store, of $2000. They waived examination in the lower court

Crippled Engine Halts Harbor Boat

The Nantasket boat, Pemberton, apparently due to engine trouble, drifted with the tide in the harbor channel off the army base, South Boston, today while en route to Nantasket. After a short time the engines were started again and the vessel returned to its Boston dock. There were only a few passengers aboard.

BROOKLINE GIRL BECOMES BRIDE

With four bridesmaids attending, Miss Isobel Ramsey McDonald of Brookline was married today at Longwood Towers, Brookline, to David Collins Horton of Hawthorne, N. Y., son of Mr. and Mrs David Horton.

The Rev. Dr. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Harvard Congregational Church performed the ceremony. Dr. Charles Dearborn McDonald of the medical staff of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau gave his daughter in marriage

The bride is an alumnus of the New England Conservatory of Music and is a violinist of note. At one time she was associated with Ethel Leginska and the Boston Women s Symphony Orchestra, as soloist.

Dance to Aid Fund for Slain Officer

A dance and entertainment will be held tonight in Brookline Town Hall for the family of Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien of the Brookline Police Department, who was murdered several weeks ago while attempting to arrest two alleged bandits. A number of well known vaudeville artists from Boston theatres will attend.

Nab Two in Drive Against Loiterers

Following the launching of a drive by the Waltham police to wipe out the practice of loafing on street corners by young men, Anthony Qualtis, 19, of Spring st., and Feslis Mollies, 18, of Hammond st., Waltham, were fined $5 each in Waltham district court on charges of loitering

JUNIOR HIGH TEACHERS WED

Bright pupils in the Carter junior high school in Chelsea would have received a break today if the Carter junior high school in Chelsea had been open and the bright pupils were in need of a break.

Teachers Dorothy R. Corbassis of 161 Central ave., Chelsea, and Daniel N. Fleming of Winthrop were married

The Rev. Michael Scanlon, pastor, performed the ceremony in St. Rose's church, Chelsea, in the presence of many relatives and friends.

Chester O'Donnell of Winthrop was the best man and Dr. Margaret Brown of Woburn was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Edna Powers of Cambridge and Alice McCarthy of Chelsea

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. James J. Corbassis and is a graduate of Salem Normal School.

Fleming is a graduate of Wood Roxbury High School and the Boston University College of Business Administration. During the war he was in the Navy and now is a member of Winthrop Post of the American Legion.

NORSE MAID AT CITY HALL

Miss Scandinavia in the costume of her native land visited City Hall today for assignment to her position on the float of the nations in the Boston Day parade, Sept. 17

The girl who will represent the viking race is Miss Edna Carlsen, 16, of 1585 Blue Hill ave., daughter of Rev. Bent E. Carlsen, hospital chaplain for the Greater Boston Federation of Churches

Miss Carlsen was chosen by the Norsemen's Tercentenary committee last night from among 17 en trants

Quincy Children Get Mackerel Haul

Black's Creek, an estuary running from Quincy Centre to Quincy Bay, became an old-fashioned fishing hole yesterday when it was discovered that a school of tinker mackerel had drifted in from the open sea. Boys and girls living in Merrymount swarmed the place, and throughout the day dangled their lines from skiffs, the bank, or Black Creek bridge

Using all kinds of fishing tackle from flies and spoons, to bent pin and string, the youngsters caught several hundred fish

CATCH FOUR IN AUTO CHASE

After a chase through four cities, four youths were arrested at gunpoint in Chelsea today by Boston's "reincarnated" flying squadron

Sergt. John Freeman, Inspector Benjamin Goodman and Special Officers Roy Bonang and Joseph S. Desmond were questioning one of them in regard to a mutilated registration when the driver of the coupe started away.

Through Charlestown, Somerville, Everett and Chelsea the chase led until the four abandoned the coupe and fled for a wooded patch in the Prattville section. With Patrolman Ralph Enos of the Chelsea police, the Boston officers captured the four

They gave their names as Michael H. Carroll, 22, of Carney st, Charlestown; John F. Keefe, 23, of Lexington st., East Boston; Thomas Duggan, 24, of Harvard av., Wilmington, and Joseph Tuberosa, 24 of Chelsea st., East Boston

N.E. COUNCIL TO MEET SEPT. 12

Needs and opportunities of the New England States in the present business situation will be considered at the 20th quarterly meeting of the New England council at Middlebury, Vt., September 12 and 13, it was announced at the headquarters of the All-New England development organization today.

Aggressive merchandising as the key to better net profits under present conditions will be emphasized by the council's industrial committee at Middlebury. The committee has an active campaign to this end already under way. The recreational development committee will present the results of a survey of the 1930 season in that field which adds hundreds of millions of dollars to New England's income each year. Another committee of the council is giving especial attention to ways and means of increasing community co-operation with local industries during the period of the present business recession. Agricultural interests are reporting a good year, and, on the whole, favorable outlook for New England farmers.

Many of those attending the council meeting will proceed from Middlebury to Springfield to attend the opening and Governor's Day ceremonies of the Eastern States Exposition September 14-15.

HUNT POISON IN BODY OF BABY

Police today arrested the mother of a baby abandoned in July and, after questioning her, announced they would request Medical Examiner Timothy Leary to make a test for poison in the body of the infant, who died Aug. 9 at City hospital.

A Lawrence man is being sought and if found will be charged, police say, with being responsible for the abandonment of the child.

The child, a boy, then 10 days old, was left with Mrs. Susan Gay of Northampton st., July 18.

The following day the child became ill and was taken to the hospital by Mrs. Gay. August 8 she reported the case to the police because the mother had not returned to pay her as agreed.

Special Officers Leonard Banks and Francis McGeever of East Dedham st. station found the mother today in a house on Warren ave. after nearly a month's search.

She refused to give her right name and said she was from Lawrence and that the child's father ordered her to abandon the boy in the woods.

FOREIGN JUDGES VISIT BOSTON

English, Irish, Scottish and French lawyers and judges, visitors to Boston this week as guests of the Boston Bar Association, will be honored at a luncheon Friday in Faneuil Hall, at which the Right Hon. Sir William J. Bull, Bart., will be a speaker.

Sir William, for many years a member of the British parliament, will be introduced by Governor Allen as host at the luncheon. The English barrister will be spokesman for the English delegation in responding to Mayor Curley's welcome to Boston.

Justice Henry Hanna, member of the High Court of the Irish Free State, will speak in behalf of the party from Ireland, and Maitre Armand Gregoire, leading member of the French bar, will be spokesman for the French delegation.

The principal address on behalf of the lawyers of Boston will be made by former Atty.-Gen. Herbert Parker.

While in Boston the foreign jurists will be welcomed to Harvard Law School by President A. Lawrence Lowell and will also visit Concord and Lexington.

5 Can Start Ancient Fliv, But None Can Stop It

It took five of them to start it, but when the five youngsters, the oldest about 12 and the youngest in the neighborhood of six years, got the old type automobile going today—it went.

It plunged so rapidly down over the Everett slope that none of the five riders could control the flight and the ancient flivver crashed into a pole at Oliver and High sts., Everett.

Unhurt, but considerably frightened, the youngsters poured themselves out of the bunch of tin that remained and scampered away.

CAPT. ATWOOD FLEES FOR HIS LIFE

Gasoline Fumes Explode, Hurling Flames Over Craft; Loss Placed at $6000

A series of terrific gasoline explosions and resulting fire destroyed the 37-foot cabin cruiser Petrel, owned by John E. Locatelli, Somerville contractor, a quarter mile off the Waveland boat wharf at Nantasket today.

Capt. Arthur Atwood, alone aboard her, fought his way from the cabin with a fire extinguisher, suffering serious burns, and rowed in the tender to shore, where he collapsed. He was taken to Sturgis hospital in a serious condition.

Thousands of bathers and several hundred motorists witnessed the destruction of the boat. Smoke and flames from her were visible from Bumpkin Island and all sections of Nantasket.

Capt. Atwood, who lives at the Locatelli's summer home in Nantasket, had the boat out for a trial run and was at the wheel in the cabin when the engine backfired and an explosion of gasoline fumes occurred.

Fire spread rapidly after he quit her and her gasoline tanks blew up with a roar heard across miles of water.

Henry Farrell and Burgess Rudderham of the Hull fire department manned a speedboat and went to the Petrel, and after the flames had abated somewhat managed to get a line aboard to tow her into D st. wharf. The loss was in excess of $6000.

THRONG AT FAIR OPENING

Favored by ideal weather, the 109th Topsfield Fair, held under the auspices of the Essex County Agricultural Society, opened today.

Long before the hour set for the opening of the fair grounds the Newburyport turnpike was crowded with automobiles bound to the fair. Traffic at times moved at such a slow pace that extra details of State police were ordered out to speed up traffic.

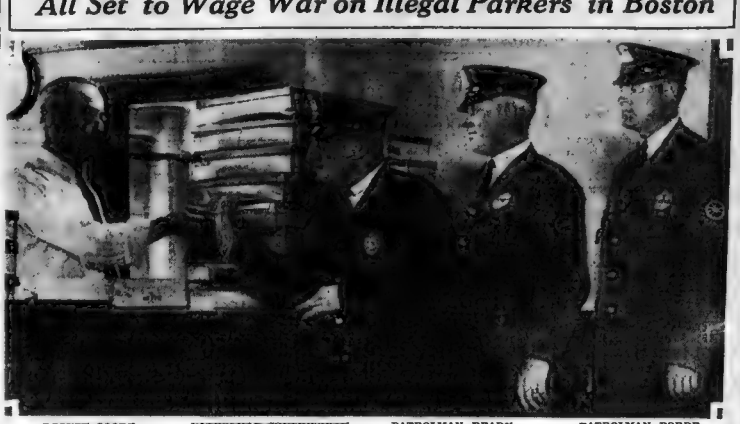
Perhaps the most important feature of this year's fair is the appearance of Admiral Byrd's South Pole dog team of nine huskies. The dogs will not only drag a dog sled in the ring, but will also drag a standard type auto in front of the grand stand.

The usual trotting, running and steeplechase horse events will be held each day. In addition to the horse races a horse show will be held. Exhibitions of cattle, sheep and goats, together with farm and truck garden produce, will also be held at the fair.

Spokesman

SIR WILLIAM J. BULL, Bart, famed English barrister, who will be spokesman for the English delegation of lawyers and judges, to visit Boston this week. He is to respond to Mayor Curley's welcome at a luncheon Friday.

All Set to Wage War on Illegal Parkers in Boston



DEPUTY GOODE — PATROLMAN SOUTHWORTH — PATROLMAN DEADY — PATROLMAN FORDE

DEPUTY SUPT. OF POLICE Thomas F. Goode opened fire on illegal parkers when he personally inaugurated the three-way non-fixing tag system at police headquarters. Results were quickly obtained, for one of the officers bagged the first victim on Berkeley st., near police headquarters. Deputy Goode is shown handing out the new tags to Patrolmen Southworth, Deady and Forde of the "tagging" squad. (Staff photo.)

POLICE USE NEW 'NON-FIX' TAGS

With 10,000 new "non-fix" tags and 300 new taggers, Boston police set out today to enforce the new automobile parking regulations, admittedly the most drastic in effect in any city in this country.

The first batch of the new three-section tags, which were delayed in delivery yesterday, were distributed this morning by Deputy Supt. Thomas F. Goode to the commanders of the 21 divisions.

A short time later the first of these were in circulation from Station 21, Back Bay traffic, and Station 1, North End. Station 4 will start using them tonight in the theater district and Station 2 will begin tomorrow morning. The first 300 patrolmen to whom has been delegated the task of enforcing the new rules were out with the tags long before noon.

They found conditions considerably improved and with little occasion for wholesale distribution of the new tags. Capt. Bernard J. Hoppe and Capt. James Laffey of the traffic divisions made a survey of the streets and found comparatively few violations. Taggers from Division 20, who ordinarily have tagged 35 cars by 10 a. m., had found only two violations of the new rules.

'VISITOR' TAGS ARE CORDIAL

Coincident with the first distribution of the new tags for parked autos, the "visitor" tags for out-of-state motorists who have violated traffic rules were put in circulation today by Police Commissioner Hultman. Suggested by Mayor Curley because of the number of visiting motorists here for the Tercentenary, they read as follows:

"Welcome visitor. This is not a summons. You have inadvertently violated one of our local traffic rules. Realizing the difficulty of conforming to traffic regulations in different cities, in this first instance, as a welcome stranger, you are excused.

"We want your stay in Boston to be as free from unpleasantness as possible. Traffic regulations, however, have been found necessary and in the public interest. We want to help you and ask you to help us. Please be careful in the future.

"When in doubt, inquire. Boston extends to you a cordial greeting and hopes you will return early and often. Do not hesitate to make inquiries from our officers."

Sailor on Portland Boat Disappears

Edward Carrington, 50, a member of the crew of the steamship Falmouth, Portland to Boston, was missing when the ship arrived here today. Police were told that Carrington had been seen poised on the rail of the steamer last night and had been frustrated in a suicide attempt. The sailor was confined to quarters last night but some time early today disappeared.

Jail Bound Woman Strikes Man in Court

As she was leaving the courtroom after being sentenced to serve three months in Charles st. jail today, Miss Helen Jolki, 31, of Brighton st., West End, twice landed blows on Walter Hall, whom she blamed for her trouble. Hall had also been given a three-months' sentence by Judge Zottoli on statutory charges.

FOSS FIRST CANDIDATE TO ACCEPT LABOR FORUM INVITATION

FLAYS BUTLER AND DRAPER 'SLUSH'

Senate Aspirant Is to Defend His Record; Others in Sharp Addresses

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Former Governor Eugene N. Foss, dry candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, is the first to accept the Liberal Civic League's big labor forum invitation for next Saturday night in Faneuil Hall.

He is plainly aroused over his official labor record as put out by the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, which embraces only the period of March 22, 1910, to January 4, 1911, when he resigned from Congress to be governor.

The candidate declared today no one had done more for labor than he as governor. He intends to place that record before the meeting to which labor leaders and candidates have been invited.

Conrad W. Crooker, general counsel for the league, who will preside, said today that Saturday night's proceedings should do much to clear the air in regard to the charges that the Butler forces were attempting to buy up labor leaders all through the state.

FOSS SCORES "SLUSH"

Striking out at the "lavish" expenditure of money by the two principal Republican candidates for the senatorial nomination, Foss last night predicted that this will become one of the big issues before the campaign is over.

"You all know me and I am not going to spend any time or money on an introduction. This is costing me $18 a minute. You can get some idea of what Draper and Butler are spending for your entertainment on the air. And, by the way, I am reminded that Mr. Butler is having to spend most of his time defending his lavish expenditure," Foss said.

DRAPER AT 2 RALLIES

Eben S. Draper, G. O. P. senatorial candidate, speaking at well-attended rallies in North Reading and Winthrop, where he received enthusiastic receptions, stressed the need of sincerity and honesty in politics.

"If our party is to continue to be successful we must stamp out the false, we must refuse to sanction chicaners, we must repudiate those who stand for such methods," he declared.

He again referred to the Eighteenth Amendment, saying that only through its repeal can the party stamp out lawlessness and corruption and promote true temperance.

At the Winthrop rally, William M Butler, Draper's opponent, was represented by former Mayor William E. Weeks of Everett.

GILLIS AT WINTHROP

Mayor Andrew J. (Boss) Gillis of Newburyport, fighting both Butler and Draper for the nomination, enlivened the Winthrop proceedings by sallies at both his opponents, in his usual colorful style.

Former State Senator Jas. F. J. Cavanaugh of Everett, in a radio address in the interest of Butler, declared that his candidate stands squarely behind Herbert Hoover and with Governor Allen.

He characterized Conrad Crooker of the Liberal Civic League as a "hawker and ballyhoo artist." No suggestion, he said, is made for an investigation of Draper's expenditures.

The circular sent out by Martin T. Joyce of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, he continued, attacking Butler's record, will not influence the Republicans in the slightest degree

BALLOON VICTOR AT CANTON

The winning balloon in the James Gordon Bennett race from Cleveland was well on its way out of Canton today by prosaic freight car—but 11-year-old Rita Toomey of 375 Neponset st., Canton Junction, will never forget her episode, so long as she lives.

Rita, with her fluffy Spitz dog, was getting the benefit of the fresh air on her front piazza when she saw lights falling in the sky.

Running over to the gasoline filling station operated by her uncle, Jerome Toomey, she pointed out the falling lights—and with her the uncle rushed out into a back field where the lights appeared to be descending.

It was the American entry, Goodyear VIII, piloted by Ward T. Van Orman, veteran pilot, and he said his big gas bag had been up 14 hours.

Van Orman, having flown 550 miles from Cleveland, is winner of the Gordon Bennett cup again.

Capt. Ernest de Muyter, Belgian entrant, brought his craft to earth at Adams, on the Levi Sweeney farm, near West Mountain. He landed at 4.15 p. m. yesterday and Van Orman stayed aloft until 10:05 last night.

Waltham Alarmed as Charles Drops

Alarmed at reports that the Charles River at Waltham had dropped so low as to threaten the city's water rights and to hamper the fire department in the event of a big fire, Mayor Duane and Chief George L. Johnson yesterday made an inspection tour of the river.

At the conclusion of the trip, Mayor Duane announced that he plans to study the situation to determine what action can be taken. Recent proceedings to prevent manufacturing plants from taking water from the river were unsuccessful.

"Little Flower" Devotions Tomorrow

Devotions in honor of St. Therese will be held tomorrow at St. Stephen's Church, 401 Hanover st., North End, the shrine of the "Little Flower," with services at 12.20, 3.30, 5.20 and 7.45 p. m.

The 3.30 and 5.20 services, which were discontinued during the summer, will be resumed tomorrow. The Rev Richard J. Cushing, director of the Propagation of the Faith, will preach at 5.20 and 7.45.

Six Harvard astronomers will read papers at the three-day meeting of the American Astronomical Society which opened in Chicago today. They are Carl Seehaien, William Calder, Harold J. Anger, L. V. Robinson, L. B. Andrews and Miss Anne J. Cannon.

Among the subjects which will come in for discussion by the astronomers will be the eclipse of the sun, which will take place in

Marjorie Dexter in Secret Bridal

A secret wedding of a prominent Malden couple at Manchester, N. H., performed July 2 by Rev. Harry Taylor, a Unitarian minister, has been revealed.

The bride was Miss Marjorie Alden Dexter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Dexter of 11 Paynter, Malden, and a member of one of the city's oldest families. The groom is Robert Lind Doney, also of Malden. They are honeymooning on a motor trip through southern New England, and on their return will make their home with the bride's parents.

WEDDING RING STOLEN, FOUND

With more than the ordinary reason, Miss Marjorie M Cole of 123 Orchard st., West Somerville, was a happy bride-to-be today.

The wedding ring which she was to give to Clinton B Jouett of Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 5, and which was stolen together with other articles from her father's apartment last week, was recovered today in a Boston pawnshop.

Other articles recovered included a fur neck piece, a motion picture camera with 100 feet of film a diamond ring and an overnight case.

The wedding ring was inscribed, "Clinton from Marjorie, Sept 5, 1930, and Miss Cole, who feared it was a bad omen when it was stolen, was its return as an especially favorable one.

The articles were recovered by Inspector John J. Smith and Sergt. Daniel M. O'Connell of the Somerville police. Miss Cole and Jouett are to be married at the First Universalist Church, Somerville, Friday evening, after which they will motor to Santa Barbara. Jouett formerly lived on Chester st., West Somerville.

40,000 RETURN TO SCHOOLS

More than 40,000 children went back to school today in Quincy, Winthrop, Lynn, Concord, Weston and various other towns where public and parochial schools were reopened.

Due to the early date of the opening, school officials do not expect a full enrollment for 10 days or two weeks. Before the end of next week all public schools in the state will have reported

Lynn, Quincy and Winthrop accounted for about 37,000 of the children who went back to their books today. Concord has 1,751. Quincy about 450. Weston and Wayland 500, Acton 800, Stow between 225 and 250 and Littleton about 235 pupils this year.

O'CONNELL TO BE AT RALLY SATURDAY

Senatorial Candidate Regaining Health; Other Democrats Busy Campaigning

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, has recovered so rapidly from his recent illness that he expects to fill a speaking engagement in Faneuil Hall Saturday evening.

He is to be the chief speaker at a meeting staged by the Civic Liberal League. His brother, James F. O'Connell, who has been filling his engagements on the stump, said today:

"Joe has come back so fast that we feel he will be able to speak at Faneuil Hall He is at his summer home in Hull and was feeling tip-top today. He is grateful for the loyalty manifested by his friends during his illness and was particularly pleased with the indorsement he received in labor circles."

James O'Connell, in Worcester tonight, will address the Independent Colored Voters

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, today declared his prospects were bright. He will make a radio address at 6:45 p. m. over WNAC

Joseph B. Ely of Westfield, Fitzgerald's opponent, was congratulated today as a result of his public ownership speech last night. The Ely headquarters at Hotel Westminster, hustled in preparation for a women's rally at the Copley-Plaza tomorrow evening

Ely will hold a rally tonight at Dorchester st. and Broadway, South Boston.

Post Atty William J. Foley was given flattering receptions in Charlestown and East Boston last night. Former neighbors, who now reside in Dorchester are arranging an "Old Home Night" on Sept. 11 in the auditorium of William E. Russell school, Columbia rd. The program is being arranged by Charles "Trilby" Cassidy, dancer and entertainer.

Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, Foley's rival will hold rallies tonight in the Municipal building, South End; City sq., Charlestown; Cheberos school East Boston; Michael Angelo school, North End, and before the Massachusetts Colored Society, Ruggles hall, Roxbury.

DRUNK DRIVERS OLD OFFENDERS

"Drunken drivers" are to a large extent persons with long previous court record, the Massachusetts Board of Probation announced today after a study of statistics gathered for July from all the courts in the State under a new and unique system, which places the Bay State in the van in this field

There were 474 persons arraigned during July for driving, while under the influence of liquor and 137 of these defendants had been in court five or more times previously and had been in court more than 10 times and four more than 20 times

Newton Fence Row Goes to Court

A dispute between the city of Newton and a Newton Center resident concerning the erection of a rustic fence, eight feet high, on Bow rd., is scheduled to be aired at a hearing in Middlesex Superior Court this week.

Protesting against the appearance of the fence, James Sheehan of White ave., Newton Center, an abuttor, has brought equity proceedings to compel the city to remove it. He charges that the fence which is more than 100 feet long shuts out the view from the rear of his house.

Let Your Girl Run Her Own Love, Same as You Did, Mother

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN—Largest Evening Circulation in New England

Magazine and Fiction Page

She'll Come to Her Senses If She Has the Right Stuff, Says Beatrice Fairfax

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss problems of heart and home at 6:35 p. m., over station WLEX.

Don't Find Fault

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have heard that you have given good advice to people. I am a widow left with two children, one 6 and one 11. I was doing my best to earn a good living for them. At present the oldest daughter is 16 years old She got acquainted with a boy 22 years old and I never knew about it.

Beatrice Fairfax

At one time I found out that she has been going with him for about two years. I have found out that he doesn't come from a respectable family and that he himself isn't respectable.

I had a talk to her about it and after that I took sick and she promised me that she wouldn't go with him again. A few weeks ago I found out that she is going with him again. I told her that I would not let him into the house.

Will you kindly give me advice whether I should let her go with him or not. I thank you in advance.

A WIDOW.

Dear Widow: If you have loved your daughter and wanted only her happiness, have given her all the advice you know how to give, then the only thing you can do is trust in the Lord. You can't run her life for her, you know, and you are only gumming things up by worrying yourself sick. If she's got the right stuff in her she'll soon come to her senses—that is, if the boy isn't worthy of her—and in any case she must work out her own happiness. You had to, you know, and it is not always with the consent of all the family and aunts and uncles that we marry the man of our choice.

Nobody is good enough for the girl, according to mother or father, but the girl, sadly enough, always has something to say about it. Be patient and brave, and take from the look of things. Even if she marries him and comes to grief, make up your mind to be always loving and helpful.

That's what mothers are for, you know. It isn't easy, but nothing worth while is. Don't love your son, don't find fault and say "I told you so" if things turn out badly. Else we lose you, too, for it and it never does any good.

Let Him Prove It

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

As a constant reader of your column, I would like to ask you for some advice. I am a young girl of 18 and in love with a fellow the same age. I've been going with him for almost a year. I am getting a ring from him for my birthday in a couple of months. He loves me very much. He tells me there is no one he ever loved as much as me.

Seeing that he is a young fellow my parents always tell me I ought to go with a fellow a few years older than myself. My parents always tell my mother to go with him because he doesn't make a living.

I love him so much I told my folks I can wait a year or two until he does make a living, to get married, because he's only a young fellow and hasn't had a chance yet. I am willing to wait for him, no matter how long it will take, because we're both young yet.

IN LOVE.

Dear In Love—I admire your spirit. As long as you're both willing to wait and be true to each other I see no reason why you shouldn't keep on loving each other and let the engagement stand.

Your parents are thinking only of your best interests, of course, and if the young man is in earnest he will want to make enough money on which you two will have to worry about bills and wear shabby clothes.

Older folks know that even the finest kind of love often wilts under the strain of not enough funds and you and the boy both had better give due thought to the financial side of the adventure before you go too far into the matrimonial question.

You're both young, as you say, and can afford to wait two years easily and longer if necessary.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20 and in love with a handsome young man of the same age. We were keeping company and were about to be engaged. There was a death in his family not long ago.

I know it was impossible for him to see me then, but it is now two months and I have not seen or heard from him since. I called on him while he was in mourning and I found him not at home. What do you advise me to do?

WAITING.

Dear Waiting—I should advise you to think of other things until the young man feels inclined to look up his old friends again. No doubt there are many family matters to be attended to, and he was not feel justified in thinking about girls for the time being.

Continue to be his friend in your heart, and if you ever see him let him know that you would like to continue your old friendship.

If you were very good friends I see no reason why you can not write a short note and tell him you have missed seeing him and hope that he is well, or any simple friendly thing that occurs to you. You needn't be so formal about it.

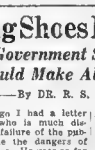
True warmth and kindness springs from the heart and needs no promptings by experts.

Wrong Shoes Make Cranks

Maybe Government Supervision of Feet Would Make All Days Happy

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

NOT LONG ago I had a letter from a doctor who is much distressed over the failure of the public to appreciate the dangers of poorly fitting shoes. He goes so far as to say that the making of shoes ought to be under government supervision. The evils produced by wrong shoes are just as great, he says, as the evils perpetrated by unlicensed doctors.



Dr. Copeland

There is a lot of truth in this extreme view. If our poor feet were given better care, we would be better men and women.

The welfare and usefulness of the individual depend to a very considerable degree upon the feet. Comfort, good looks and real efficiency may be ruined if the feet hurt.

On each of those very rare occasions when I come in contact with a cr and bri- his clerk I have wondered if her feet hurt. Poor thing, she can't be agreeable if they do.

Once in a great while somebody will look at your feet and smile. It will be provoked by such glances if your shoes are nea tand clean. Your feet may be warm or particularly well formed, but really nobody gives a second's consideration to such matters.

How we poor mortals flatter ourselves. Our clothes, their make and material, the shape of our ears, the size of ou noses, our thinness or fatness, and the shoes we wear—we imagine all these are studied and commented upon by those we meet. The truth were known we should be humiliated by the indifference of the public. The fact is, our neighbors are little interested in the details of our getup. They like us or they don't, not for our looks or our feet, but for what we are, and particularly for the way we behave.

What we know as "personality" is largely the sum total of vigor, energy, enthusiasm, sparkling eyes, rosy cheeks, springing step, hearty handclasp and bubbling over good nature. All these are signs of unfailing health and make up what is ordinarily called "personality," or "it."

You can't be good-natured, you can't smile, your eyes won't sparkle if your feet hurt. Aching feet will ruin the appetite and impair digestion.

Any kind of pain is disconcerting and undermines the health. It is bad enough when you cannot find the cause, but it is disheartening indeed if you know your pain is caused by shoes, too tight and wrongly shaped.

Sit down and think it over. Isn't it better to be free from pain and happy all the time than to try to camouflage your feet by hiding them in shoes made for a much younger set of feet by your family? Isn't it better to promote your own happiiness through the entire day than to depend on the fleeting glance of a stranger?

Wear comfortable shoes and have better health all the time than try to offset her health add to your personality. Go to a shoe shop where you can be properly fitted and your usefulness will multiply.

What's in Fashion?

Fall Colors for Homes

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Sept. 3—Want a room good looking enough to get its picture in the decoration magazines?

A good starting point to make it so is the color scheme. The colors of your drapery and upholstery fabrics. And if you'll watch those pictures of fashionable rooms, you'll see that there's a fash. of ensembling shades of one color with one other color for slight accent.

This Fall, even though the fashion is for using fewer colors, there are many more lovely shades of one color to use. There are lots of subtle, in-between shades that can be beautifully blended.

The fashionable 1930 colors are a little brighter. That is—while they are soft, they are clear. Not muddy. And they're warm, friendly colors. Even the cool colors like blue and green are more fashionable in their warmer shades.

Comfortable Looking and Pretty, Too, if Properly Done

How to Combine Colors

We've had a sketch made to show one popular and easy way of combining colors. Mostly. The chintz curtains are edged in solid color fluting.

The chair is upholstered in plain color repeating the dominant note of the chintz pattern. And the plain color is in the same color as the fluting on the draperies.

Of course you want to know what colors are best . . . most in fashion this Fall. Our check-ups on fashions in the home show these to be the ones.

Green Very Fashionable

Green is a first fashion this Fall But it's a bluer green this year slightly grayed.

Blue, fashionable last year, is still in. But now the rust shades have more orange or rose in them. Yet they're not half too bright.

Brown is a very much in fashion color. Lovely wood browns (there's a new one called walnut that's very much like old walnut wood) and teal browns.

Build in good—and best when it's a green gold or a pinky gold.

Blue is growing more popular than it has been for some time. But it needs to be used in a sunny room, because blue is a cold color.

Peach—a favorite bedroom color —is getting more of a pinky tinge. More saltony.

Mulberry—that rich reddish purple color—and eggplant, which is slightly browner than mulberry, are both more popular than ever

Red, however, is not quite as popular—not so much in fashion—as it was last year and the year before.

Accent Colors

Good accent colors include eggshell, and—for very formal rooms—cream or white. Turquoise is a fine color effective as a chintz background in formal rooms.

Mustard yellow and butter yellow are fine accents for brown or mulberry. And orange is showing up in tasteful ways.

Orchid isn't quite as popular now. But coral and lacquer red, paired with discretion, are climbing up in fashion

Black is still being used in some modern rooms. But lots of people are finding it isn't as pleasant to look at as the browns that are gradually taking its place.

Judy Finds Herself Under the "Third Degree," With Scar-Face After Her Secret

CHAPTER 36

FOR JUST an instant Judy imagined that Cap'n Charley's face was inquiring, oddly sharp. Then the sandy beard wriggled, and he smiled and roared like a good-natured lion.

"Come in, my dear, eh, come in then! Shut the door. How pretty she is, eh? Old ocean is kind to young ladies. You've got a minute, my dear?"

"Many minutes for you, Cap'n Charley." There was something in the air, something that stirred her as if tiny electric currents touched each of her nerves. "You wished to see me, Cap'n Charley?"

"Eh now, of course I did. Who wouldn't?" He motioned her to a little wicker settee. "Sit and sit down, ill at ease. "Been neglecting the old sea dog for those that are younger and handsomer. Nothing to tell an old fellow, Judy?"

She gave him one of the smiles

"Say, Mister," was the man's greeting. "What kind o' book store is this anyway? Some one has come in here and taken my book mark out of its place!"

that came so easily to her lips these days and settled back more comfortably. "Who says there's anyone handsomer than our pilot? Remember when I was a little girl, Cap'n Charley? I used to want to grow up all in a hurry so I could go to sea with you. I would cry for days every time you took a ship out."

He Laughed

Cap'n Was Jovial

He rumbled with laughter, the ruddy cheeks swelling so the small, light eyes were almost crowded from his face. "That's Johnny Archer's girl. Though we might take some old times a bit, eh? Johnny Archer's girl—"

He said it slowly, lingering on memories.

"Your father was a good man, my dear. Square all the way through. His daughter couldn't be different. There's much of him in you."

Her eyes filled. "I try to live up to dad Cap'n Charley. You see it's sort of puzzling sometimes. Knowing just what's what. Things look one way when they're another. But I've never done anything I knew he wouldn't like. I won't either."

"I know it." He wagged his old lion's head and she watched him in a startled way. He seemed to be defending her. Defending her against what?

But a steward brought tea at the moment on a big tray, spreading it on a table, which he drew out from the wall making a great clatter with cups and saucers, snatching a napkin from a plate of sugary cakes.

"Now you that cheers, my dear. You pour for the old captain."

Judy drew up to the table pretending it was a great occasion, declaring that she could not wait for the sugary cakes. "But he brought three cups, Cap'n Charley.'

As if it had been a signal, knuckles sounded at the door. When it swung back Judy looked up with a caught breath and a square of sugar fell from the tongs she held and rolled away on the floor.

"Birke, this is Johnny Archer's girl. Your father," he said, to Judy, "knew Tim Birke years ago when they were young fellows."

"Really? I'm glad——" She faced him now, met his curious look with a new, happy interest. "This is going to be a nice party. Why, a wonderful party! And I never guessed."

Mr. Birke talked in a rollicking way about his boyhood in New York, about the kid on the next block, a young rashling named Johnny Archer Once they put a mouse in the teacher's desk once they fought over a homely pug-tailed girl. She was a famous ovaltongue now.

Judy kept nodding saying between smiles and tears, "Oh, go on until some more." And to herself she said, "He's fine To think I was afraid of him!"

But Birke fell silent, glowering at his cigar and Cap'n Charley made a great business of clearing his throat, moving the tea things around

"Eh, Judy, my dear," he said at last, things have come about. We've reason to believe you know what some of them are. Eh, then, we wish to hear what you know."

About Halifax

"Gently, Birke," he growled. "I'll not have you scaring her. She's no more mixed in this than I am as I've told you before."

Birke said "No," very quietly and smiled

Judy felt Cap'n Charley's hostility go out and she, too, was calm Only bewildered. "It's just that I don't understand, Cap'n Charley. Unless—why would you mean about Halifax and—and—"

"But you must know about the Public Gardens—the shots—she told the story. Only the part about Tris she left out.

"What about Halifax, Miss Judy?" Very coaxing Birke's voice could be, very gentle. And because Judy could think of no reason why she should keep to herself the puzzle of the lane in this, Mr. Birke. More than I do. You run out of the lane. Why, I thought you must have fired the shot."

"Yes. And afterward, Miss Judy. Was there something more?"

"Why oh!" She had been on point of saying, 'Tris! I broke my glasses I was so surprised—!"

But she caught back the words. And knew Birke understood she was holding something. The piercing look crossed his eyes, but his voice was more gentle than ever.

"I'm sorry, Miss Judy, Captain Marceau said you'd be willing to help."

Cap'n Charley patted her shoulder and looked grave. "Eh, girl, better do as he says. Mind what you told me a bit ago that you loved the old dad? Eh, then, Judy, you do what Tim Burke says."

Judy was trembling now, shaken by nervous strain. "But—but what if I won't do it? What—what does he want from me, Cap'n Charley?"

The Beauty Box -:- By Helen Follett

SACHET BAGS attached to coat and gown hangers are a delightful luxury. Two thicknesses of cheesecloth are best, though these practical containers don't look as pretty as silk. But they let the sweet odors seep out.

Borax is used in the sachets of some permanent wave machines. It softens the water and the hair shafts absorb the steam more really. It is doubtful if the borax does the slightest harm as the hair is shampooed after the hard boiled curls are acquired Following a certain number of permanents, the glorious crown should have a course of oil treatments, one a week for two months or so.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The "Wives' Exchange"

THERE OUGHT to be a "Wives' Exchange," where slightly used husbands could be turned in and traded off for a different model.

No matter what kind of car or what kind of husband you have, you can always imagine that you might have been better off with some other kind.

The wife of the rounder or the playboy no doubt thinks that she would joyfully trade him off for a sober, steady old grouch who would come home regularly every evening, go to sleep after dinner, and pay the bills on the dot.

The wife of a bore secretly believes that she would be almost willing to part with her steady in come and her peace of mind in return for an exciting existence with a heart-breaker or a jazz boy who would at least put a little color in her life and take her out of the deadly monotony.

And the wife of a "stepper" and a woman-charmer feels sure that she could be happier with a husband who beat her, choked her or starved her than one who constantly pleases and deceives her, keeps her soul on the rack and holds her up to ridicule.

That's human nature. "The ills we know not of" always seem more endurable than those that face us across the breakfast table every morning.

That is because we choose a man for his charms and virtues instead of for his faults. Yet the average human being has 10 or 20 little faults to one virtue—and we've got to LIVE with ALL of them.

If you can love a man BECAUSE he is lazy and careless and easy going, or because he has an iron will, a flourishing vanity, or a quick temper; or because he throws away his money or hoards the pennies or is strong and silent, or frivolous and flighty—you could of course easily love him for his virtues

And then you'd be loving ALL of him! And to live happily in the close communion of matrimony with any mere human being, you've GOT to love all of him!

Foods Suitable for Cool September Days

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Greatest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000

SEPTEMBER WEATHER is certainly tricky! Many two or three days it will seem like the most doggy of the dog days, fall clothes will look too silly for any use, and the next two or three days it seems as though October or early November were with us, and summer clothes look like the last gasp of that perverted "misspent life"

Martha Lee

Food desires and needs are just as peculiar. On the cold days we want rich, tasty foods, and on the hot days we want cool, light ones

RICE WITH BACON AND TOMATOES

Saute 5 large slices bacon, diced, and 1 large diced green pepper together until bacon is crisp. Add 3 cups stewed tomatoes, 1 tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper. Previously boil 1 cup rice in 1 quart of boiling salted water, and drain. Add tomato mixture and pour into a baking dish. Cover with 1 cup grated cheese and bake in a hot oven long enough to melt cheese and slightly brown. Serves 6.

MACKEREL SHEPHERD PIE

Drain ½ cup peas, 1 cup diced, cooked carrots and add to 2 cups white sauce. Flake 1 one-pound cold cooked mackerel and fork very carefully into the sauce, so that it remains in fairly large flakes. Pour into buttered baking dish and pile fluffy seasoned mashed potatoes on top. Brush with melted butter and bake in a moderate oven until very hot and the potatoes are golden brown. Serves 8.

CHEESE SARDINES

Spread oblong pieces of toast sparingly with onion butter (butter creamed with a little onion juice). Drain one 11-ounce can sardines in mustard sauce and split down the center, removing back bone, but being careful not to break the sardines Lay one split sardine on each piece of toast and sprinkle with paprika. Cover with grated cheese and paprika. Place under broiler flame until piping hot. Serve on small plates with a little of the hot mustard sauce on each. Serves 6

SALMON AND PEANUTS IN CREAM SAUCE

Melt 3 tbsp. butter, add 3 tabsp. flour and stir smooth. Add 2 cups milk slowly, stirring constantly until smooth and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add 1½ cups flaked salmon and ½ cup chopped salted peanuts, and reheat Serve on toast. Serves 6.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Women's Exchange

From Mrs E. A. G of 2 North ave., Attleboro, Mass., comes this delicious recipe for peach cream, a luscious gelatin dessert.

PEACH CREAM

Two tbsps. granulated gelatin, 4 tbsps. cold water, ½ cup orange juice, ⅓ cup sugar, 1 tsp. full vanilla, 2c. of whipped cream, 2 c. of sliced fresh or canned peaches.

Soak the gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Dissolve over a pan of hot water. Add the orange juice, sugar and vanilla. Allow to cool and thicken a little. Beat until fluffy and beat in all the remaining ingredients. Pour into a mold and chill until stiff.

This economical recipe for shredded wheat pudding was sent in by Miss H. W. of Flat Rock rd., Fitchburg, Mass.

SHREDDED WHEAT PUDDING

Soak 2 shredded wheat biscuits in 1 quart of warm milk for an hour. Then add ½ cup molasses, 3 tbsps. of sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, ½ tsp. salt and a teaspoon of vanilla. Bake one hour and serve with cream. I like to bake all egg and milk puddings in a dish of hot water as when baking custards. They seem smoother and are not so inclined to become watery.

LEMON PIE

1 lemon
1 coffee cup of sugar.
2 eggs
1 pinch of salt
2 coffee cups of boiling water.

Break up the eight biscuits in a quart dish, pour the boiling water on them. Wash the lemon, grate the rind and mix the grated rind with the crackers and water Add a heaping tsp. of butter.

Add ½ a coffee cup of sugar to the crackers. Separate the yolks from the whites of 2 eggs. Add the yolks to the sugar. Add sugar and yolks to the crackers and mix well. Bake until stiff.

Make your meringue. Replace in oven to brown.

MERINGUE

Whites of 2 eggs.
2 tbsps. water.

Beat the whites of 2 eggs and 2 tbsps. water until stiff. Add the sugar and beat until stiff. Spread it on pie and place it in the oven to brown.

Be Sweet—Read Browning

Develop the "Light Within" to Cure the Temper That Hurts Only You

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My father-in-law's cousin returned from a trip to Florida recently and I met her for the first time When introduced to her I stood up and shook hands. She came upon the porch, where I had been reading and offered me her hand I said "How do you do." Did I do correctly?

I am a bit uncertain whether a young girl should rise when introduced to an elderly person In my opinion it seems more respectful

2. Now, Mrs. Beeckman, I wonder if you can help me further? I am getting quicker daily Why can I do? I can be as nice a person as you would want to meet when I have to be, and yet I am one of the worst. Why? I say things I am sincerely sorry for immediately after, but they are said and hurt. What is a sure cure for a nasty tongue and temper? Please help me

It seems when I became attached to a person I don't treat them with the same consideration I give a stranger I don't want to be this way, but I've been so the whole of my life. Can there be anything to this late date? I am 25 years of age.

HATEFUL.

1. Yes, you were just right in standing up, in offering your hand and in saying "How do you do?"

2 I agree with you

You are a nice person, for only a fundamentally fine person could make such a thoroughly charming confession! Now that you have "got it out of your system" I'm sure, this, and determine to watch your tongue Or perhaps first I should say "watch your thoughts"

It is very easy to be as you say you are, and many, many people are this way, as you and I know The difference between them and you, however, in most cases, is that you know that you are that way, and that you want to be some other way, some attractive way. The battle is won, mostly won at least by your desire not to be "hateful," as you sign your letter.

Make yourself ashamed of yourself; make your spirit ashamed to show itself in this nasty way; develop the "light within" and make it glow when it comes out into words.

Are you fond of reading? Not light reading, I mean, but good thoughtful reading. If reading that makes you see how fine other people are, how superb the world is when we do our share, I'll dare you to read some Browning. He is the poet who can teach you more about the hearts of people than any other poet I know. The hearts of people as you need them revealed to you. And Emerson—there is another fine reading, and self-reliance exposed.

You see I emphasized reading about the world and about other people, because the minute you really understand them, you, in that minute your own spiritual reactions will be cleansed, and your tongue will "speak no evil." Try it!

Managing a Difficult Food

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

How should Julienne potatoes be eaten" Julienne potatoes were served with our dinner at a fashionable club, and, as I was experiencing some difficulty in eating them with our fork, one person suggested eating them in my fingers, as he did They are very unmanageable with a fork Was he correct when he said that "everyone" eats them in the fingers? J. Z.

Julienne potatoes do offer a problem, but they can and should be managed with the fork. Although they are so small, they are rather greasy when taken in the fingers. And therefore we should eat them with a fork. And it's fun to practice in this obstacle race.

Building Cost Cut; Profit Change Seen

Wiring and Electrical Supplies 20 P. C. Lower; Plumbing Cheaper

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York, Sept. 3—Read these timely statements—and, if you are at all in a position to do so, act on them:

"Construction costs, at the lowest market for years, offer an opportunity that is unlikely to be duplicated again within a decade.

"Prices of building materials have been reduced from 15 to 40 per cent as compared with 1923 costs.

"Residential rentals are lower by 25 to 35 per cent.

"There is a plentiful supply of skilled workmen, producing approximately 20 per cent more than in the same length of time in 1923—at lower labor costs.

"Lumber is selling at 25 per cent under 1923 prices; cement, rock and sand, the three ingredients of concrete, at almost 50 per cent under prices of two years ago.

"Wiring and electrical supplies are down more than 20 per cent; plumbing materials are 10 to 15 per cent cheaper. Brick is 33 per cent cheaper than in 1923; roof tile 46 per cent less. Plaster has dropped 40 per cent, wood lath 30 per cent; metal lath, 30 per cent.

"Those who take advantage of low construction costs may confidently expect to profit by the increased value of structures when sales ensue again.

"The great building activity of 1923-24 followed immediately after an unusually short campaign of public construction—such as is now well under way throughout the country."

* * *

These facts and figures have been brought prominently to the attention of every family in Lancaster by the local realty board by means of a vigorous, comprehensive advertising campaign. While the reduction percentages may vary in different communities, building costs have come down all over the country and the amount of labor purchaseable for a dollar has increased. That prices will go substantially depressed is unthinkable.

* * *

* * *

In most communities facilities are now available for financing building operations. Building and loan associations have accumulated enormous reserves. In most cities there are financial institutions in a position to furnish funds for legitimate building purposes; savings banks have gone on increasing their power to absorb mortgages; insurance companies have continued to function and are thus able to make investments day by day and week by week in attractive mortgages.

* * *

"Borrow to build" is advice many families should act upon forthwith.

In Los Angeles one constantly hears instances of almost unbelievable increase in real estate values during recent years. Remember that this city's population has increased from approximately half a million in 1919 to a million and a quarter today. Read these extraordinary statements:

"A recent survey of 328 corner lots in one area of the city that was practically undeveloped 10 years ago, showed gains in increased valuation since 1919 ranging from 623 per cent to 27,439 per cent, with an average for all of 3147 per cent, or 314.7 per cent gain each year. Similar examples in many other areas can be cited.

"The average assessed valuation of these 328 lots in 1919 was $9,806 each. Today they have an average assessed valuation of of $84,785 each—an average gain per each lot of $83,981.

* * *

Here is one notable difference between most of our Eastern communities and our Western communities: In the East there is, especially at present, a disposition to look for only modest, if any growth, in the next few years, whereas out West there is very confidence that future growth will eclipse all past growth. Is this one reason why Western growth has been remarkable?

MEAT SELLING IS URGED FOR DRUG STORES

By FRANK H. MELLON

The food chain stores having invaded the drug store field, the current issue of Drug Trade News suggests that the drug stores sell meat in packages topped with the now familiar cellophane. The publication states that two big meat concerns are at present preparing to serve the expected drug store trade. Selling of meats by the chain food stores themselves is a development of recent years. Showing the diversity of expansion, note that one big chain of food stores maintains retail gasoline stations, selling its own production in Greater Boston.

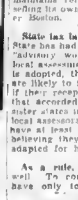
State tax law revision in the Bay State has had as one of its features "advisory" work by the State on local assessment methods." If this is adopted, the would be advisors are likely to find the going rough, if their reception is anything like that accorded to similar boards in sister states in New England. The local assessors, like the local police, have at least some justification for believing they themselves are best adapted for handling local affairs.

* * *

As a rule, they do their work well. To confirm this view you have only to peruse the annual study of local taxation in Massachusetts conducted by Orra L. Stone general manager of Associated Industries of Massachusetts.



Orra L. Stone

* * *

Of the members of the organization Mr. Stone represents have been quite active this year in many instances. A resulting example is the cranberry concern down on Cap Cod, which has a very large building program well be called "The Temple of the Cranberry." Here jar containers filled with the luscious product of the marshlands are to be in all visitors. The cranberry crop this year, by the way, promises to be of bumper proportions.

* * *

The "R" is in the month again, which spells quality for the oyster industry. Comparatively few people realize that oysters abound without special cultivation in many sections of New England. This week we saw bathers picking them from under the pier whose shoreward waters off Town Park, Hyannis, also at Great Bay, N. H.

* * *

September marks the opening of the oyster season, giving employment to 15,000 men. Approximately half of the oyster fishermen have been unemployed during the summer. W. H. Hays, president of General Seafoods Corporation, a subsidiary of General Foods, declares many states will benefit in the re-opening of the oyster season.

* * *

"Outlook for a bumper oyster crop is unusually good this year," says Mr. Hays.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

One Wall st. writer deals with the "bull market" problem as follows:

"It is to be doubted that there has been sufficient investment accumulation to lay the foundation for an extended bull market, but with the most powerful professionals working as a unit a more active and stronger market can result for awhile—so long as the unit remains unbroken."

Technically the market performance has been encouraging to those who watch day-to-day fluctuations. If the market succeeds in exceeding its previous "top" on the last rally, it will be considered highly significant by the chartists and others who base their speculations entirely on the market's own performance regardless of outside factors.

Seek National Biscuit Stock

Expansion of the National Biscuit organization has continued right along, either through purchase by the parent organization or through acquisition of control in other companies by subsidiaries. It has been the consistent growth of the company and the strong financial position which have made the stock one of the favorites in the past. On all reactions there has been evidence of good scale buying of the issue.

Steady Growth in Allied Chemical

When investors come into the market for common stocks it is probably that Allied Chemical will receive attention, due to the steady growth of the company since it was organized by a combination of various units less than 10 years ago. Last year the net income amounted to $30,198,533, a new high record. The management has been conservative in its dividend policy, for 40 per cent of total net income has been retained and reinvested in addition to plant and working capital since incorporation. For the past three years $8 a share stock has been distributed and last January a stock dividend of 5 per cent was paid.

McKeesport Tin Sold on Extra

Sponsors of McKeesport Tin Plate sold the stock on anouncement of the extra dividend. They were of the opinion that a setback would improve the technical position, but maintain their bullishness on the longer-term prospects for the stock.

Radio Provides Disappointment

Failure of Radio to participate more actively on the upside is disappointing even to some of its strong friends.

Nickel Continues Strong Feature

International Nickel's persistent strength emphasises the character of the buying in the stock. The company can produce copper at an amazingly low cost, so that it is little concerned over the current low price for the metal.

Lambert Made Good Comeback

After a decrease in earnings in the first quarter Lambert made a good comeback in the second three months, so that the results for the half-year were equal to $5.03 a share, compared with $5.00 in the same period last year. For the 12 months of 1929 the earnings were equal to $1.04 a share, and in some quarters it is estimated that between $3.50 and $10 a share will be shown this year, a good record in view of the general recession in business.

Foreign Power Utility Favorite

Few utility stocks have as many friends among the speculative fraternity as American Foreign Power, but the continued political disturbances in South America prevent active sponsorship.

Averaging to Win Is Tried

One large Broadway trader who has been buying stocks since first of the year says he has been a persistent purchaser because he believes eventually he will be able to sell out at a very handsome profit. So far results of his operations have not been profitable. His list includes stocks like Montgomery Ward, Baltimore & Ohio, Standard Brands, Kayser, American Metal, Stock Yards Western, Gillette, Standard Gas, Liggett & Myers, General Electric, Humble, Borden, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power & Light, Continental Oil, Electric Bond & Share and U. S. Steel.

The close of the week every stock he owned out of a list of 30 was selling below the purchase price.

Study Is Made of Earnings Reports

Earnings reports, compared with corresponding period a year ago, and dividend announcements by leading companies shape up as follows

	Since Additions July 1	Yesterday
Increased earnings ..	181	7
Decreased earnings ..	430	12
Initial dividends	13	1
Resumed dividends ...	2
Unchanged dividends..	842	24
Increased dividends ..	8	1
Decreased dividends..	28	2
Omitted dividends....	30	..

Steels Earning Their Dividends

Production as well as prices of steel products in the third quarter will be lower than in either the first or second quarters. From this one can easily forecast lower quarterly earnings than in any preceding quarter this year. But most of the leading steel companies probably will earn regular dividend requirements. And those that don't have sufficient reserves on hand to warrant payment of regular dividends.

Copper Surpluses Are Showing Gain

The copper situation is back where it was up to a few years ago, when the policy of dog-eat-dog prevailed. There is to be no organization so far as prices are concerned, but it can be said that producers are adhering to a policy of reduced production. On present prices and curtailed production there is very little profit in copper —not enough to warrant continuation of current dividends. While production has been cut this country, Canada and South America, the reduction in output has not been as drastic as one might be led to believe. Proof is found in continued monthly increases in surplus stocks.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were mixed in extremely dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes were narrow. Bigelow Sanford broke to a new low for the year, showing a decline of 31 points from its 1930 high.

Edison held steady in forenoon trading, but broke a point later in the session. Cities Service was steady.

Pond Creek Pocahontas equalled the year's high at 19, while on the other hand Eastern Gas & Fuel declined 9¼ duplicated the 1930 low. United Founders was easier at 16¼. At this level the shares are but slightly more than a point above the year's low.

United Shoe Machinery common continued to edge forward, soon reaching a high of 65¾. Considerable investment buying has been going on for some time based on comparative steadiness in earning power. Including the 1¼ extra dividend the shares at present prices yield better than 5 per cent.

Boston Stock Exchange has admitted to trading $40,000,000 4¼ per cent bonds, due 1960, of the Portland General Electric Company is a subsidiary of Pacific Northwest Public Service Corp., the latter controlled by Central Public Service Corp. It operates electric light and power service in Portland, Salem and over 70 other communities in western Oregon.

Textiles Are Studied

By JOHN W. LAIRD
(Irving Fisher Service)

New Haven, Sept. 3—As it continues to slow down, cotton spindle activity gives evidence of more effective curtailing by the members of the industry as well as of a still declining rate of business activity. At last the textile manufacturers, a large number of them, are succumbing to the idea that large output of goods does not of necessity lead to large profits.

On the other hand, of course, mere curtailment of output does not necessarily lead to large profits either.

Overhead continues on, and competitive conditions, if anything, are intensified. But at least the withdrawal of those least fitted to survive leaves room for some to make a profit above cost of production. And, notwithstanding the low cost of raw material this year, that has been a difficult thing to accomplish.

Not only high-labor-cost Northern mills have passed dividends or reduced them during the first half of this year; Southern mills have done so as well. Three of the largest Southern cotton mills have either cut or passed dividends during this period. In all, North and South, eleven mills have passed and four reduced payments.

No wonder the "35-50" proposal is gaining adherents in both sections. It provides that no accepting mill shall operate more than 35 day and 70 night hours during any week. In fact, many Southern mills are falling in with the idea of eliminating night work for humane as well as economic reasons.

There is need of further readjustment before the price situation is anything like satisfactory, since the New England mills, notwithstanding relatively great reduction in spindle activity, are perhaps, temporarily, because of it, show the greater drop in earnings.

CURB MARKET PRICE RANGE IS NARROW

New York, Sept. 3—Curb market prices held within a narrow range today. Speculative sentiment was confused, with the result that moves in either direction failed to accomplish much suggestion of a trend.

Trading, however, was in slightly larger volume and the undertone was firm most of the session. Traders were content to let the market drift.

Ford of England was brought forward as a trading favorite, rallying in response to pool accumulation. Ford of Canada "A" recovered part of yesterday's loss on short covering. Anglo-Chilean Nitrate was particularly weak, dropping more than two points on moderate liquidation. Developments in the industrials and specialties, as a whole, were thin. General Baking was active and slightly higher. Copper Bessemer gained a couple of points and Hayden Chemical made a little progress.

Utilities were sluggish and irregular, making unimportant changes. Electric Bond & Share was fairly steady around yesterday's final price.

Word came to initiating an absorbtie program of expansion in the Diesel engine field by Standard Motors Construction Co., at a special meeting here elected as technical advisory committee, Lawrence, president of the Thos E. Murray Corporation, a leading electrical engineering organization, Laurence R. Wilder, an engineer of note became chairman of the board, and Samuel H. Kaufman, a prominent attorney, was made a director.

Investment Holding Company stocks retained their recent firmness. There was a small demonstration in Goldman Sachs trading which crossed 20, but otherwise the group was quiet.

Oil and Natural Gas shares were neglected. A point rise in Houston Oil of Texas was a feature.

SPECTATOR'S FAVORITES

By SPECTATOR.

Although the period of 4 weeks has as yet failed to penetrate the July resistance levels on the upside, a number of leaders and trading favorites have already exceeded their best points recorded a month ago. Chart studies are of the belief that the stocks which have shown better than average market action will in due course would logically be expected to maintain their stride with a continued improvement in the buying sentiment.

The list of 28 leading issues in this favored classification are Air Reduction, American Bank Note, American Power, American Machine & Foundry, American Tobacco, Baldwin, Brooklyn Union Gas, Corn Products, Curtiss Wheeler, General Electric, General Foods, Johns Manville, Liggett & Myers B, Loews, McKeesport Tin Plate, Mathieson Alkali, National Dairy Products, National Distillers, Radio Keith Orpheum, Reynolds Tobacco B, Sears Roebuck, Standard Gas, Timken Roller Bearing, Union Carbide, United Aircraft, U. S. Pipe & Foundry, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse and Woolworth.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

STOCKS REACTIONARY IN LATE WALL ST. TRADING

New York, Sept. 3—The stock market appeared wearied from professional bullish prodding today, and after a momentary upturn during the early afternoon, came to rest 1 or 4 points below yesterday's closing levels.

Stocks losing 3 to 4 points included Sears Roebuck, Johns Manville, Dupont, Foster Wheeler, Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak, Columbian Carbon, and Standard Gas. American Tobacco B lost 5, and Case 6.

PRICES SLIDE OFF

U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Loews and Radio lost about 2 points. Bethlehem Steel was a spot, rising 3/4, then losing a point of its gain. Atchison gained nearly 2 points.

The indecisive action of the market yesterday indicated to the bear crowd that many traders long of stocks were anxious to take profits after the rise of last week, and the continued lack of public buying was evidently somewhat discouraging to operators for the rise.

Firm features were Allied Chemical, Union Carbide and Bethlehem Steel, each up 2 to 3 points. A new development of the day's trading was an upturn in the banking shares, particularly the Wall issues, practically inactive of late. The class A stock traded 12 points above the last transaction. The Continental Baking shares also gained a couple of points.

United Aircraft, U. S. Pipe, International Telephone, Electric Auto Lite, were also firm.

Shares selling off 2 to 6 during the morning included Radio Air Reduction, Loews, Standard Gas, American Power & Light, American Tobacco B, Johns Manville and Case.

The situation in the steel industry was somewhat obscured by the Labor Day holiday, but "Iron Age" regarded the situation optimistically, stating that ingot production had increased one percent for the third successive week, reaching 50 percent of theoretical capacity.

The review pointed out that sheet makers were taking the most determined price stand of the year. Structural steel orders were placed at the highest level since the second week of June. "American Metal Market" and "Steel" however, noted little change in the situation.

Further reductions in the dividend rates of Kennecott Copper and Nevada Consolidated were not unexpected owing to continued sluggishness of the market for red metal, and had been largely discounted marketwise.

The continued piling up of dividend reduction announcements, however, was not helpful to the cause of higher stock prices. Glidden, Maytag, Bohn Aluminum and Spencer Kellogg were among firms announcing reductions.

Despite the soggy appearance of the market, stock operators found further signs of seasonal upturn in business reports. Total freight car loadings for the production of bituminous coal, both recorded wider than seasonal gains in the third week of August, according to statistics coming to hand.

CHAIN STORE GAINS

That some of the chain store companies are managing to increase their earnings over last year was indicated by W. T. Grant's report for the six months ended July 31, showing an increase of 10 per cent in sales over the period of a year ago, due to increased stores in operation, but also an increase in net earnings of 12 per cent.

Call money still remained plentiful at 2 per cent. This, however, was probably due primarily to lack of demand. The banking demand for funds, resulting from the Sept. 1 settlement, appeared to decrease in the rate for federal funds to 2¼ per cent, indicating that there has been considerable borrowing from the Federal Reserve this week.

A year ago today, what has gone down as the stock market history as the "Coolidge Bull Market" reached its theoretical peak as measured by Dow, Jones & Co. averages. The industrials at the close stood at 381.17, the rails at 189.11, highest levels on record. What has since taken place forms an special page in stock market annals.

Cotton futures started up and later soon up 4 to 12 points. Corn started up but eased with wheat to below yesterday's finish.

Pres. Joyce of Glidden Co. reports that notwithstanding adverse conditions during July and August the company's sales are still ahead of last year. He says it is in splendid financial condition, with ratio of current assets to current liabilities of 12¼ to 1.

Some important contracts in both chemical and pigments divisions and in the food division have been closed, and volume of business resulting from these contracts will greatly increase the volume for the next 12 months.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 3—Grains closed generally lower today, with all deliveries of wheat at new lows on the crop. Wheat was 6ff ½ to 7c, corn ¼ to ⅜c and oats ⅛c down to ⅛c up. Rye was 1¾ to 1⅞c lower.

Polymet Mfg. Corp.

Polymet Manufacturing Corp. reports for year ended July 31, net profit of $181,280 after charges, reserves, taxes and inventory adjustments against $486,707 a year before.

Lucky Girl

open, some closed. Vistas of more land, and looked around quickly. Heavens, want a big room! Almost as big as the whole house on Mt. Vernon street. All silver turquoise, with, modern furniture made out of some silvery-grey wood. The bed alone was twice as large as the biggest bedroom at home. And such thick, soft towels, oh, the fat cakes of English soap, and the berjboned jar of jasmine bath crystals!

Cathie began to feel better. She slipped out of her clothes, and into a padded satin robe. When the bath water was turned off she could hear Mr. Farnsworth whistling as he dressed in a room diagonally across the hall from hers. She began to whistle, too. The sense of peace and security that had been hers ever since her marriage began to come back to her. She was going to be happy here. She'd make herself be happy. She wouldn't let an old busybody get on her nerves!

Dinner was perfect. Cathie had never tasted such food. "Cheng is probably the best chef in the country." Mr. Farnsworth said complacently, as Cathie finished helping of chicken, isle de France.

News From Son

The table was exquisite. A lace and linen cover, fine as an altar cloth. Dark blue and ivory service plates, gold encrusted D 'r blue goblets. Tall ivory candles glowing in blue and crystal glass candelebra. Dark, red, velvet petalled roses massed in a silver bowl.

Cathie couldn't help thinking that it was a shame to go to so much trouble, for just the two of them if Mr. Farnsworth didn't care about formal parties at least she could have the family often . . . and Aldis White, and maybe Mr. Dr now from the office, and even Frank Pope.

"Hello! Here's a letter from Chester." Mr. Farnsworth was looking over a pile of letters. Cathie opened upon this one from his son He slit it open eagerly, and read it to himself, a pleased, proud smile on his nice, florid face.

From Chester . . . from his son. He had often talked to her of his son. He was so sure they would like each other.

"You're younger than Enid, his wife," he had told her, "and twice as attractive. Oh, she's pretty enough in the conventional way. A very lovely girl, really. But she lacks your charm, my dear. Still, she is a girl. A very nice girl. You're going to like Enid, I'm sure. And as for Ches and I well, I suppose we'll be more like brothers than father and son now."

World Tour

"What did you tell him about our marriage?" she had asked, a little uneasily.

"Nothing. They're on their way back from a long tour and I have no way of getting in touch with them. Their wedding trip, too, though a more protracted one than your hard-working husband can give you. Two years! A trip around the world. It was one of my gifts . . . two years, dear, what a lot we will have to say to each other!"

Cathie watched him reading now. She saw that the letter bore a double row of stamps. She supposed that meant they were on the way to Boston.

Mr. Farnsworth folded the letter and returned it to its envelope.

"That's fine," Cathie said, rather weakly.

"Yes, they'll be here any day . . . any day now. I'll phone to see to the suite on the north side, will you?"

"They . . . they're going to live with us?"

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 186

Lines of social distinction were strongly defined among the Colonists. To possess a court cupboard was a mark of standing. This piece in the Museum of Fine Arts once occupied a place in the living room of some fine old Colonial family. This is one of the three types of similar cupboards—all known as court cupboards — which were in use. All were used for storing valuables and for displaying on the tops and shelves the pieces of family plate.

In its example the sturdy posts are turned, the bottom skirt is carved into the ogee pattern, and around the top is a toothed moulding. The piece appears elaborate in its workmanship, but in truth its structure follows that of the simple joined pieces of the 17th century. Uprights support the horizontal parts, which are attached at the corners by mortise and tenon.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the piece, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 8 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

Gandhi Spurns Move for Peace

Poona, India, Sept. 3 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi conferred in Yarodu prison with Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, and Mr. Jayakar, unofficial peace emissaries between the Indian government and the civil disobedience leaders. Sapru and Jayakar looked gloomy on leaving, which led to a general conclusion that the peace conversations had proved unproductive. The conversations will be resumed tomorrow.

Sapru and Jayakar were closeted with Gandhi, Madame Sarojini Naidu and Rangaswami Iyengar, editor of the Madras "Hindu," for four and a half hours.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Buying Now, and Jobs

One Cure for Unemployment

Mayor Curley said in his Labor Day address that if every working person would spend $20 at once for the things he needs for himself, his family or his home it would empty the shelves of our retail stores, start the mills and factories humming, provide jobs for all.

Some time ago, the Boston Evening American put the same thought into the suggestion that a sane spending of $5 a week by those with jobs, would insure a continuance of those jobs, and at the same time would end unemployment.

Another speaker said elsewhere that with the opening of the schools, which will release 28,000,000 primary and college students and a million teachers from their vacations, a new volume of purchasing power will be unleashed.

Both observations were thoughtful and encouraging.

We must get it into our heads that we are a family of people, mutually dependent upon each other. No one group can be continuously and permanently prosperous while any other group languishes. Goods are cheap now, many rare bargains are to be had.

Steady jobs and good wages are the essentials to good times for all. We are kept in our jobs because other people buy the products of our labors. When we stint in our purchases of their products, they lose their jobs and, in turn, their ability to buy from us.

If we have none of the social instinct in us, at least we should have the good sense and business intelligence to protect ourselves. We can never buy goods more cheaply than now; we could never have a better appreciation of the idea of patronizing our neighbor because it is patronizing ourselves in the last analysis.

The great mass of our people constitutes the great purchasing power. It is they who by their initiative and common sense must raise themselves back to prosperous times while alleged financial leaders view the scenes with fear and trembling.

Mr. O'Brien Speaks Out

No Foreign Entanglements!

Mr. Thomas C. O'Brien's splendid attack upon the doltish and hazardous policy of foreign entanglements which can sap the independence of the United States is one of the distinct contributions to the Democratic campaign for United States Senator.

Mr. O'Brien says clearly, emphatically and sensibly that if elected he can be trusted to adhere irrevocably to the ancient historic policy of friendly intercourse with all nations, but of political alliance with none of them.

That policy was good enough for this country for more than a century and a quarter. It is good enough now for all except the ring of mercenary international bankers who would pledge the blood of America's young men to guarantee their reckless investments abroad and the little crew of diluted Americans who would rather wear a cluster of foreign colors in the lapel of their coat than the emblem of their own country. Mr. O'Brien's outright denunciation of the senseless program of this motley group should count to his credit on election day.

Mr. O'Brien's arraignment of Mr. Marcus A. Coolidge as an advocate of American entry into the League of Nations and the League Court is an indictment which the latter can hardly withstand. Mr. Coolidge's campaign has been singularly and suspiciously free from any discussion whatsoever of this important issue. If he nourishes the belief that any pro-League, pro-Court Democrat can win the support of the Democratic voters he will wake up on the morning after the primaries a disappointed but enlightened man.

Helping a Little Girl

American Readers Respond Nobly

You have read in this newspaper the touching story of Eleanor Green. She is five years old, aenemic, confined to her little trundlebed with an illness possibly incurable. Only nourishing food, especially milk, can prolong her life.

The three other children, the oldest eleven, in this home of poverty bravely relinquish their meagre supply of milk to the suffering child who smiles through her illness. But it is pitifully inadequate, even for Eleanor, much less this family of material misfortunes in the little home where a stern tragedy of life is being enacted.

Generous hearts have responded to the little story printed in the Boston Evening American. There have been tenders of milk and delicacies that may revitalize the spark of life in the little body of the anguished child. Money has been forthcoming to help the poor mother. The mother and the three children, along with little Eleanor, have borne their cross with fortitude. Are you conclude the reading of this your own generous impulse may prompt you to seek out a means to lighten their burden and restore a ray of hope to the home among us where adversity has prevailed.

Prohibition Logic

Clear, Simple

Prohibition logic continues to be one of the marvels of our time. An assistant Attorney-General of the United States, G. Aaron Youngquist, went on the air the other night with the frank admission that the Federal Government could not enforce the law and wound up with the usual appeal to the States for help.

Mr. Youngquist pointed out that the States shared with Uncle Sam the privilege of enforcing the prohibition statutes, and seemed sadly puzzled because some of them didn't enforce it.

The reason they don't, it might be pointed out to Mr. Youngquist, is because they don't want to. This is, perhaps, sad. But as Grover Cleveland would have said, it is a condition, not a theory.

One can sympathize with Mr. Youngquist and his problems. He has the somewhat difficult task of keeping 123,000,000 people dry with only 1750 other people to do it. To supervise every 70,000 men, women and children 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, he has but one Federal agent. No wonder he wants help.

It would all be so simple, Mr. Youngquist correctly says, if the people would just obey the rules. The rules have been made—perhaps by a minority of the people, it is true—but still they have been made. If the majority don't like them, then there must be something radically wrong with the majority.

And that's logic.

"COME, LET US BE BROTHERS!"

That's the invitation to Germany with one arm and one leg missing, to Austria with both arms and legs missing.

You can't blame Germany and Austria for replying "First give us back our arms and legs."

The idea that Europe should unite in a great federation, or "United States of Europe," is earnestly advocated by Mr. Briand, representing France.

"Come, let us be friends, let us be brothers," says Briand. "Let us abandon brutal, cruel war, substituting fraternal cooperation.

"Let us live on the continent of Europe as the United States lives on the North American continent, helping each other, working and trading together as civilized men and nations, free and happy."

A beautiful picture. There is no reason, except ancient prejudices, race or religious hatreds, and commercial jealousy, why the nations of Europe should not be united in friendly rivalry, free from war or any thought of it, as are our 48 nations that make up the United States of America.

There is no reason, surely, why nations different in government, ideals and methods should not live side by side as the United States and Canada live, without a battleship or a fort, on the waters or the boundary line that divide them.

In this newspaper recently, a statement prepared by Mr. W. R. Hearst for the German Frankfurter Zeitung, sets forth the obstacles to peace and to the organization of an European "United States."

To have an idea of Austria's condition in peace, Mr. Hearst said:

"Let us suppose that the entire west coast of the United States had been given to Mexico and the entire east coast of the United States had been given to Canada and the entire south coast of the United States had been given to Spain, so that there remained to the United States only the central part of the country without any seacoast of any kind whatsoever. That would be a duplicate of the existing Austrian situation. If such a thing had happened or should ever happen to us, our people can understand how dissatisfied, how indignant and how determined to rectify this injustice at some future time our people would be."

To have an idea of the dissatisfaction in which the peace of Versailles left Germany, Mr. Hearst said Americans must imagine that

"Arizona and California (which formerly belonged to Mexico) were given back to Mexico and the State of Washington were given back to British Columbia and the State of Florida were given back to Spain and a lane were cut from the Great Lakes following the Erie Canal through New York State to the sea, and the lane which divided New England from the rest of the United States were given to Canada"

If a man had cut off your left arm and your right leg, or both your legs, or both your legs and both your arms, which is what the Allies did, geographically speaking, to Germany and Austria in the Treaty of Versailles, you would not be enthusiastic about such a man's overtures of "brotherhood."

The injustice following the World War in the vicious Versailles Treaty must be rectified before there can be serious hope of a "United States of Europe."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3—Four times in the same number of months and twice in the past 24 hours, I have been mistaken for another.

I'm beginning to peek around corners. It began when a man tapped me on the shoulder in the Graybar building to inquire: "Aren't you Tully Marshall?"

I tried to tell him above the Waldorf riveting, several block away, I was not. He peered curiously, growled so though he might slap me: "Well, you look like him." Later, on a liner deck a tittupy man greeted me with: "Hello, Oscar!" I wondered how that got out. It is one of my trick names.

He fell in step and I began angling with leading questions to place him, but he was a total stranger. Finally he asked: "How is Mr. Shaw?" I look about as much like Oscar Shaw as Louis Wolheim does like John Barrymore. And furthermore my teeth came from Macy's.

Then there was the noon I was stretched on the broad terrazo of Weber's in rue Royale awaiting my wife. A gentleman hopped quickly out of a mouse-powered taxi, rushed over and began pumping my hand. I abhor effusive hand-shakers and he could have kept a dozen eggs two weeks on the cold storage look I gave him.

He was not the sort to be bothered by that, pulled up a chair and wanted to know how the polo pony was getting along. It seemed he had swapped one with me. I don't even know the which end of a polo mallet. My increasing chilliness, you have no idea how mean I can be, finally touched him.

He stopped short with an oddgaze and inquired: "Aren't you Ed Baker?" I replied in my farthest north manner I wasn't and hoped he would enjoy his homeward voyage—the last crack was to burn him right up. He went away shaking his head.

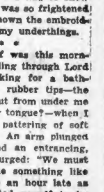
Later, in Berlin, I was walking through the Bristol lobby. A page boy said the cashier wanted me. After several searching questions I caught the idea. Someone looking like me gave the hotel a rancid check a year ago. I had to show my passport and was so frightened I'd gladly have shown the embroidered "COM" on my underthings.

• • •

But the pay-off was this morning. I was prowling through Lord and Taylor's looking for a bathroom chair with rubber tips—the one I had flew out from under me and did I bite my tongue?—when I heard a hurried pattering of soft foot-falls behind. An arm plunged through mine and an entrancing, breathless voice urged: "We must hurry (calling me something like 'Buvsey'), we are an hour late as it is." I permitted myself to be dragged to an exit door before she discovered her mistake, dropped my arm like a hot potato and turned flaming red.

• • •

This same late evening walking northward I stopped to look in the window of a candy store above the Savoy-Plaza. A lady came out of the store with a package under her arm, counting change in her hand. Without looking up she handed me the package and announced: "We might as well take a taxi here!" I inquired: "Who brings these beautiful flowers?"—that's me every time, smack on the barrel head, the old trigger stuff, botchie dotchie! She blushed becomingly, explained her husband was to await her outside the candy store. "You look a bit like him!" she added, and I thought a shade kittenishly.



One thing I hope. That no one mistakes me for Rudy Vallee. I'm a perfect sil making love. O, well, I mean without a youngish moon, a bammock and a uke and things.

• • •

These experiences, it strikes me, will utterly baffle hooters who cut out unbecoming pictures from my elegant column and fire them in with such acid taunts as: "No human being could look like this!" It appears many do.

A terrifying thought just assails me leaving me clammy. Maybe they switched babies on my parents at the hospital. Likely as not I am someone else!

H. G. Wells Writes

Man Is Slower in Developing Than Some Animals

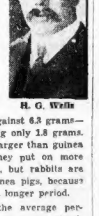
FINAL SIZE depends upon two separate things—the rate of growth and the length of time which it continues. For instance, a man has a postnatal growth period of over 20 years, a rabbit of about 15 months and a guinea pig of about 14 months.



H. G. Wells

Man and rabbit put on about the same average amount of weight per day six grams as against 6.3 grams—but a guinea pig only 1.8 grams. Thus men are larger than guinea pigs because they put on more weight per day, but rabbits are larger than guinea pigs, because they grow for a longer period.

If we take the average percentage increment as our standard of growth-rate, however, we find that man has the slowest growth of the three, his mean percentage increase for the whole of his growth period being only .02 per cent, while that of the rabbit is 0.50 per cent, and of the guinea pig 0.47 per cent.

It is more likely that some, at least, of the universal slowing in compound interest rate of growth is due to the difficulties arising out of mere bulk.

The animal or plant must draw its food and oxygen through some surface; the living substance that is to breathe or to be fed is a solid mass. And every one knows that if you double the linear dimensions of any object, a ball or a model yacht, you increase its volume eight times, its surface only four times.

Automatically, therefore, the increase of an organism's bulk slows down its capacity for supplying the cells with materials for growth. Caterpillars, for instance, alter but little in shape and proportions during growth. But they may increase a thousand times in bulk, and this will mean that the absorptive surfaces of their digestive tubs has only been increased a hundred times—the proportion of the absorptive surface of the bulk to be nourished is only one-tenth of what it was when they hatched.

Small wonder that their growth slows down as they enlarge.

But this is assuredly not the only force at work in restraint of growth. It has been found that from old tissues a substance can be extracted which will damp down the growth of tissue cultures; from embryo tissue a substance which will speed them up, and it has been shown by Warburg that actively growing cells, like those of embryos and still more those of cancers, have different chemical habits from slower-growing cells; they need more sugar and, indeed, in some ways resemble the yeast cells in their alcoholism.

Connect these facts with the further fact that certain extracts from yeast cells will increase growth in many animals, and you will feel that we are on the verge of important discoveries concerning the control of growth.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

America Is the Result of Dreaming —the Dreams of All Men

SHE'S PRETTY and smart and modern as the newest beach pajama. Her name is Rachel—she's secretary to Bill Jones, Hardware—and she's in love. In love with a young man she met last month at her girl friend's party—a splendid, blond young man by name of Wilson. The blond young man is calling her up three times a day and asking her out to meet The Folks. Nice Folks, who live most graciously in a beautiful house, and who are eager to welcome the girl their boy loves.

Elsie Robinson

Eager to welcome her! High goes Rachel's head with pride, quiver go the soft, red lips and the dreaming dark eyes glow like stars—then suddenly are filmed with tears! For how can she ever tell him her dreadful secret? How can she confess that her Folks aren't nice like his—that Mother wears a wig and Father a shovel beard—that there are strange foreign dishes on the table when she goes home at night, and a guttural gabbling in the air and, on Friday, candles—and a prayer that was not made in America? How can she tell him this? How can she hold him if she does tell him this?

Here it lies on my desk—this tear-stained letter from the little girl who calls herself Rachael Cone. And beside it lie dozens of other rebellious young letters from girls whose mothers wear wigs and shawls, from boys whose fathers can think only in terms of Norway or Russia, Italy or France. Shamed letters—shamed because the Old Folks won't fit into the new life, the new love. Shame that runs like a minor, wailing chord through the great, triumphant chant of young America.

Old voices muttering of the Fatherland—young voices chanting of America—was there ever a better day to answer them both than the Fourth of July—than the day that came as an answer to the hunger in all men's blood, the dream in all men's hearts?

For that is how America happened, and that is what it means, young Rachael and Carmina, Tony and Olga and Olga and Hans. It is not a land of one people or for one people. It is a land of all peoples. And to that land has come the treasure of every land and the sweet hope of all nations. America was not born at Lexington. It was born in every heart that ever cried for liberty.

In the jungles of Africa, on the steppes of Russia, by the fjords of Norway, in the vineyards of Italy, America was born. And her richest treasures are the various thoughts and customs and ideals that went to her mingling.

Do not be ashamed because your people are different, Rachael, Carmina, Tony, Olga and Hans. Be proud because they are different. Be proud because they are giving to America the flavor and tang and beauty of their differentness. Do not lie about the old folks or try to hide them from your new friends. Bring them gladly, lovingly into your America—FOR THOSE OLD FOLKS MADE AMERICA FOR YOU.

How to Start Your Own War

By ARTHUR BAER

THE PRESIDENT of Peru left his country under rather military circumstances. He was acting as pathfinder for a large but elastic group of former admirers who desired him to autograph his own tombstone.

• • •

The president of any country is a nervous man. He gets blamed for everything that happens even when it's postponed.

• • •

So the executive of Peru and its romantic environs decided that if he wanted his personal numerals to be included in the 1930 statistics of the life extension bureau the only thing to do was to print a new government edition of certified footprints.

So he took his dignified foot in his equally austere hand and went away from there. His line of march was that of an ant on a hot rock. He jumped any place that seemed a little cooler than the last stop.

He thought en route ran something like this: "I am the first citizen of this land. I hate to disappoint a posse. But in order to be the first citizen of the land I must remain first."

• • •

"You cannot always judge the depth of the well by the length of the pumphandle. All these citizens chasing me are the loyal constituents who voted for me at the last election.

• • •

"But I never believe in crossing a bridge until the dentist sues me for the bridgework. That's what I get for putting a low tariff on patched parasols, folding bungalows and rundown heels."

• • •

• • •

Then when it forgot to rain for three months, and the Peruvian Stock Exchange fell flat on its face and business ricocheted on a bankrupt tangent, the Peruvian citizens started taking crumbs away from sparrows.

• • •

You don't need a nurse when you are no longer a boob-in-arms.

• • •

Two is company and three can be dispersed by the police. The Peruvians were great admirers of Brazil, the home of the festive pecan and the almond.

• • •

Hearing that Peru was chasing its President across the border, the Brazilian Parliament sent Peru a diplomatic protest:

"You are infringing on our racket. We don't care what legitimate business you go into. But when you chase politicians across the border you are exporting nuts."

• • •
